Dr. A. R. Brubacher, President of State College for Teachers, Albany, Delivers Commencement Address

High School Value

Speaker Calls High Schools Fount of Citizenship—Honors Speeches and Awards

Kingston High School, observing its 27th commencement last evening in the municipal auditorium, awarded 334 diplomas of graduation and 25 honor awards to its largest senior class. More than 2,000 relatives and friends of the graduates were seated in the auditorium for the third successive evening for the graduation exercises, for which the high school has been established by this date.

Dr. A. R. Brubacher, president of the State College for Teachers, Albany, in a well-delivered and inspiring address told the graduates "our school of citizenship is the high school, and high school graduation is the most significant event in the scheme of public education" and he urged them to preserve the freedom which these schools imply.

On Platform

Seated on the platform with a few of the graduates and the members of the high school choral and glee clubs were Dr. Brubacher, Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen, Principal Clarence Dunn, President Alfred Schmidt of the Board of Education, the Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and Harry Harold Karateck of Congregation Ahavath Israel, who gave the invocation.

In his address to the graduates Dr. Brubacher spoke as follows: The full measure of devotion.

"High School graduation is the most significant event in the whole scheme of public education. It is the climax of a great drama in the lives of these young citizens and the capstone in the structure of the state and nation. We should be negligent indeed if we did not each year revalue and define anew, the fundamental purposes of the American system of free schools. This is the school of citizenship. Here we prepare those who will be responsible for the perpetuation of our form of government. Here we educate leaders in whose hands will be the democratic processes, the welfare of millions of the citizens. In these high schools we set up standards of integrity, of taste in the inner things of life, standards of conduct in daily living. These high schools are the very life of our democracy. In New York State some 650,000 boys and girls are enrolled as high school students. Each average cost for maintenance, operation and construction of more than one hundred dollars per capita above the cost of buildings and grounds, that is, permanent betterments. These figures amply illustrate the importance of high school education in the American system.

All nations, at all times have ever much attention to citizen education. Greece gave us a model for the education of its boys and the famous ephebic law is even today well worth consideration. At 18 every Athenian boy took the following oath before entering what might be called the Greek high school:

The Ephebic Oath.

"I will never disgrace my country by cowardice, nor desert my companion in the ranks. I will fight for gods and home, both alone and with others. I will strive to hand on my fatherland to posterity, a greater and a better country than was transmitted to me. I will obey the magistrates who are in power. I will observe existing laws and those hereafter passed by the people, and if any person seeks to discredit the laws and disobey them, I will oppose and prevent him and will defend the laws both I alone and others. I will honor the religion of my fathers. I call the gods to witness."

"Russia is today the pioneer in its persistent effort to train its youth for Communism and to convert its mind against a free economy such as ours. The Russian Consolom and Octobrist party take children from early adolescence, about junior high school age, on through the 20th year, into the Red Army—an intensive education by which the mind of youth is imbued with the virtues of Communism and the utter viciousness of all other political and social economies. Germany and Italy have imitated Russia's program. The Hitler youth is given a mental and emotional set by which they reverse the present regime in

Gunshot Deepens McCormick Case

Albuquerque Patrolman Says Mysterious Man Fired Shot at Him and Companion

MEDILL MC CORMICK

Albuquerque, N. M., June 29 (AP)—Late developments in the search for Medill McCormick only deepened today the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the 21-year-old Chicago publishing heir.

A single, unexplained gunshot, and an unidentified object in a remote canyon were the meager clues need out to searchers who began their seventh day of combing the rugged sandia mountains, into which the youth vanished last Wednesday on a mountain climbing expedition.

The patrolman said the source of the shot was a man on a smaller eminence near North Sandia Peak, where the search for young McCormick has centered since the body of his climbing companion, Richard Whitmer, was found there Thursday.

New York Police Say Bathelt Sold Morris Automobile

Man Held in Massachusetts on Charge of Murdering Race Track Follower at South Hadley Falls

Northampton, Mass., June 29 (AP)—New York police said today that John Paul Bathelt, 25, of New York, held here without bail on a charge of murdering Charles Morris, race track follower, had sold an automobile identified as once belonging to Morris.

The body believed that of Morris was found last week in the Connecticut river. Detective Lieutenant Martin Owens, announcing what he called "a very important link in the chain of evidence in the Bathelt case," said Bathelt sold to a New York dealer last October 14 a sedan which "Massachusetts authorities know belonged to Charles Morris."

The victim, tentatively identified as the 50-year-old Morris apparently was slain June 21, 1935, in a South Hadley Falls camp. His body was buried for a time, then exhumed, bound with hay wire, encased in cement and dumped into the river. "Proof of the cement, the body floated ashore last week."

Dentist's Report

In nearby Springfield, Dr. Charles Krasnow, a dentist whose office is across the street from the hotel where Morris lived while attending Agawam race track, told newsmen he could identify the teeth found in the body as Morris'. Dr. Krasnow said he had done dental work for Morris and particularly remembered several gold teeth.

Meanwhile, with Bathelt held without bail on a murder charge, to await an October grand jury, state police questioned and then released a former business associate, Alfred Christen, of Lynn.

What they hoped to learn from Christen or what he told them was not disclosed. Police made clear that Christen was not taken into custody, was not implicated and answered questions voluntarily.

Car at Newark

Discovery of Morris' car at Newark, N. J., highlighted the fast moving developments following Bathelt's arrest. Lieutenant Owens said Bathelt told the New York dealer the car belonged to a Murray Levine (no connection with the New Rochelle lawyer of the same name whose son, Peter, was kidnapped and slain.)

Owens said the dealer took the car to a Newark dealer and sold it for $600. "The Newark concern disposed of the car and made out a check to Murray Levine, which was cashed in Newark," Owens said. "The money was given to Bathelt there."

The officer said Newark police were holding the car for Massachusetts authorities.

Already in possession of Massachusetts Detective Lieutenants Dan Murphy and William J. Puzo was a 45 calibre revolver taken from Bathelt last March by New York police. New York officers said the presence of the gun became known when Mrs. Margot Bathelt accused her husband of stealing $1,350 worth of jewelry, a charge she later withdrew.

Investigators at the scene here minimized the gun's importance in the case. They said Bathelt had a permit to carry it. Secrecy shrouded the results of a systematic police search of Bathelt's car, seized at Bellows Falls, Vt., on Monday. Detectives virtually tore it apart for bullets and evidences of the killing they believed took place in it.

End of Air Raids on Anglo Ships Predicted as Result of Meeting

Roosevelt Assures Nation Depression Drive Underway

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt gave the nation assurance today that the big federal drive on depression would reach full momentum by July 1.

At the same time, the President said, this country still is searching for a permanent solution of the unemployment problem—a solution that will not involve big expenditures for armaments. Mr. Roosevelt, discussing relief objectives at a press conference late yesterday, said one matter under study was how Sweden was able to pay the cost of a public works relief program, instituted during bad years, with funds accruing during more prosperous times.

The President compared that Scandinavian country's success in paying off work debts with the United States, which he noted did not rid itself in the comparatively good business years of 1926-27 of the cost of lending and spending programs in 1933-34-35.

In the present $3,750,000,000 campaign to aid economic conditions in general, Mr. Roosevelt said all federal agencies involved were pushing toward top speed by the first of the month.

PWA he asserted was going ahead as fast as it could. WPA would have as many as possible of its recently authorized 400,000 new workers enrolled by that time and the Civilian Conservation Corps was training its 150,000 full strength. Other agencies with lesser programs were hitting a fast pace, too, he added.

Describing unemployment as a continuing problem, the Chief Executive said no country has developed a permanent solution of it. The only seemingly 100 per cent solution of keeping all employable at work all the time, he added, was to pile up armaments.

That Mr. Roosevelt declared "no permanent solution because it involves the manufacture of goods which do not reproduce wealth

Dr. Woolley to Be Mt. Marion Guest Speaker on July 4

DR. MARY E. WOOLLEY

The annual fall and dinner of the Mt. Marion Reformed Dutch Church will be held July 1. The guest of honor and speaker will be Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president emerita of Mt. Holyoke College.

Dr. Woolley will speak on "Today and Tomorrow in the International Field." The fall will open at 10 o'clock in the morning with booths of all kinds and many attractions, including a fortune teller, the famous merry-go-round of Tom Penning and games and pointers for the children. Luncheon will be served at noon under the trees by girls in early American Dutch costumes.

The church service will start at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Woolley will speak. The formal part of the church will return for this service. Prof. W. Whiting Fredenburgh of Kingston will preside at the organ and Cecile Jacobson of Brooklyn will sing.

Following the church service, a concert of that music will be given on the lawn by musicians from the Ernest Williams school of Music at Pine Grove.

An old-fashioned chicken dinner will be served in the late afternoon by the ladies of the church.

The program of the church service is as follows: Organ Prelude, W. Whiting Fredenburgh.

Star Spangled Banner; Vocal solo, Cecile Jacobson.

Scripture, the Rev. Edward T. Prater, the Rev. Arthur L. Oudemool.

"How Beautiful Upon the Mountain" (Phaethon Harker), vocal solo, Cecile Jacobson.

Benediction, the Rev. Clayton J. Potter, D.D. Recessional, W. Whiting Fredenburgh.

Has Seen Trouble

Rochester, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—The son said "No Parking" and two-year-old John Bjornstated knows that it really means just that. The youngster's hand against the sign. Also leaning against it was a "stop sign" which had become dislodged from its base. The stop sign fell, hit John on the head and John fell and hit his head again on the pavement. His parents took him to a doctor for treatment of bruises.

Eric County Inquiry

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Plans for another vice and gambling inquiry in Erie county were under way today after a grand jury reported that bookmaking business in certain communities. Following a four months' investigation, the jury said it was convinced "the business of bookmaking in these communities was well organized and protected."

Plan Bonus

Hollywood, June 29 (AP)—Dopey is going to repay the folks who cheered him on when he was just a gleam in Walt Disney's eye. A bonus of three months' salary for all 800 employees of Disney's studio is in prospect if the profits on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" come up to expectations.

Arsenal Attacks

Duce's Talks With Aides Said to Have Suggested Substitute Plan

Rome, June 29 (AP)—The end of air raids on British merchant ships in Spanish waters was predicted today as a possible consequence of a meeting between the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

Some diplomatic quarters indicated Great Britain might have made remission of her still-operative friendship treaty with Italy the price of continued air raids on her shipping.

The treaty, signed April 16, was not to become effective until a "settlement" was reached in Spain but Premier Benito Mussolini recently has sought to put the pact into force without delay.

Finally well informed quarters said they understood Lord Perth had urged Lord Duce strongly to use his influence with Spanish insurance Generalissimo Francisco Franco against the air raids which have raised a storm of indignation in the British parliament.

Aware of Difficulties

Political circles expressed here that Mussolini was aware of the difficulties the air attacks raised for British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who has shown an inclination to cooperate with Fascist Italy. They considered it likely Mussolini wanted to smooth Chamberlain's way at home.

Reports that Duce Monday had summoned his military advisers to find out if bombardment of Spanish government arsenals would not substitute effectively as attacks on supply ships in government-held harbors tended to bear out this belief.

Although the bombings, technically have been carried out by flyers in the Spanish insular air force, the fact that Italian and German pilots and planes are carrying it, diplomats said, means Duce's "alliance" with Franco can assure a hint to them.

Whether Count Ciano replied at their conference yesterday at Chigi Palace, however, was not disclosed in a terse communique.

Storm Intensified

London, June 29 (AP)—Britain's political storm over the official secrets act was intensified today when Duncan Sandys, central figure in the turmoil, told a turbulent House of Commons he had been ordered to appear before a military court.

Sandys, conservative member of the House and son-in-law of Winston Churchill, declared this was "a gross breach of the privileges of this House."

It was Sandys' charge in the House Monday that the attorney-general had threatened him with invocation of the secrets act, usually used against spies, unless he divulged the source of certain information, that brought the controversy into the open and aroused criticism weakening the position of the government.

Frames Question

On the basis of this information Sandys had framed a question to be asked in Commons concerning alleged deficiency in Britain's defenses against aircraft. The military court was instituted yesterday to inquire into this leakage of information considered secret.

Sandys told the House today he was ordered to appear before the court in uniform in his capacity as an officer in the territorial army tomorrow morning "for the purpose of giving evidence."

Prime Minister Chamberlain then announced that Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary of war, would ask the army council to suspend the court proceedings until the House committee on privileges had reached a decision on the affair.

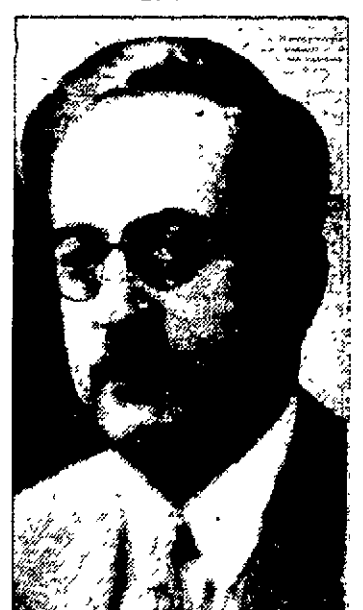

The war ministry selected "Big Bill" General Sir Edmund Ironside to head a military court of inquiry to learn who had been "spilling the beans" on secrets of Britain's anti-aircraft defense.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, dynamic war minister, stood to play an important role in what the government opposition said might develop into a first class "scandal."

Born in Hungary, Mrs. Kaman spent 49 years in the United States and for 27 years made her home in Poughkeepsie, returning to Kingston about a year and a half ago to make her home with her daughter. Mr. Kaman died July 6, 1936, in Poughkeepsie following a fall down stairs. Mrs. Kaman's body was taken to Poughkeepsie Wednesday morning for burial. Mrs. Kaman was the beloved mother of Mrs. Margaret Kraus and Mrs. Barbara Langton of this city, and Mrs. Mary Opperman and Mrs. Anna Benjamin and Julius, Frank, Louis and Meinhard, Jr., all of Poughkeepsie. There are 14 grandchildren and one great grandchild. Funeral services were conducted Friday morning from Joseph J. Darrow Funeral Home, 39 South Hamilton street, and from the Church of St. John the Baptist where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. Alexander Butkowsky of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Kaman was a member of the Church of St. John the Baptist and of the Holy Rosary Society of the church. Burial was in the family plot in Calvary Cemetery.

No Flood Waters During Rainfall

Despite three days of rain the mountain streams were not brought to flood conditions and at the office of the New York City Board of Water Supply this morning it was stated that the rain had not caused the streams to come up to any degree. Low before the rain broke last Saturday night the streams at no time were near flood condition and the run off in the Ashokan area was light, much of the rain being absorbed by foliage and the parched ground.

No exceptional run-off in the Ashokan area is expected and the rain, while assisting streams, will not make any exceptional increase in the storage in the big basin.

In Kingston from Saturday night until Monday the rainfall was recorded at 3.75 inches and there was additional fall Tuesday morning and throughout the day.

Seek Action
Washington, June 29 (AP)—Leaders of 42 peace and labor groups asked President Roosevelt in an open letter today to "strengthen the hands" of the Mexican government against internal rebellion and foreign interference. The signers said they were noted with growing concern the predictions of qualified observers that "Mexico may become the new-world Spain; that foreign propaganda and foreign funds are aiding efforts to overthrow the regularly elected Cardenas government."

Foster Denies Plea Of Liquor Concern

An order has been granted by Supreme Court Judge Foster in the case of Edward J. Fenton vs. the Pennsylvania Whiskey Distributing Corp., denying the distributing company's motion for judgment dismissing the plaintiff's complaint. The plaintiff was represented by Arthur Ewig of Cashin & Ewig, while Harold N. Reinitz appeared for the defendant corporation.

Mr. Fenton of this city commenced an action against the distributing company to recover damages in fraud, claiming that he was induced to enter into a contract for the purchase of whiskey upon the fraudulent representations of the company that it was a distilling company, and that it was selling United States Internal Revenue Bonded Warehouse receipts, covering the quantities of liquor purchased.

It was claimed by Mr. Fenton that some two or three years ago, after the contract was made, that he refused to perform under the contract because of other representations, which to him justified such action.

Because of his refusal at that time to perform, the distributing company commenced an action to recover on the notes given in payment of the contract. Subsequently this action had been settled.

At the time of the settlement, however, Mr. Fenton claimed that he was not aware of the fact that the company was not a distilling company, but rather a distributing company and that he did not know that the so-called warehouse receipts were not genuine U. S. Internal Revenue Bonded Warehouse receipts, and that had he known this he would have refused to make any settlement. Mr. Fenton also claims that because of the fraud and misrepresentations, he was induced to settle these cases, and to execute and deliver a general release.

The present action was brought subsequent to the discovery by Mr. Fenton of the alleged fraud. The defendant claimed that the execution of the release barred any action by Fenton at this time.

Stenzel Funeral To Be Held Friday

The death of Edward Stenzel, 53, of High Falls, Tuesday at the Kingston Hospital, where he was taken Saturday evening following a collision between his motorcycle and a car driven by John Bessmer of Rosendale, brings this year's deaths from motor vehicle accidents to six. Mr. Stenzel died Tuesday at the hospital following amputation of his left leg Monday. Whether criminal action will be taken against the driver of the car will not be known until after an inspection of the reports of the state and state trooper is made by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray.

This morning Mr. Murray stated that he had not had an opportunity to examine the reports of the accident to determine whether or not grand jury action would be had. In the case of criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle resulting in death, the grand jury may indict. On June 23 last year there had been 15 deaths from motor vehicle accidents in the county.

Mr. Stenzel, riding a motorcycle, suffered a severe fracture of the left leg when his vehicle and the Bessmer car collided at the junction of two roads in High Falls. Mr. Bessmer brought Stenzel to the hospital, where Dr. Chester Van Gaasbeek and Dr. Jack Lehner made every effort to save the leg but on Monday it was found necessary to amputate. Tuesday Mr. Stenzel died as result of shock.

The body was turned over to Undertaker Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson and funeral services will be held from the late home at High Falls on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time. Services will be in charge of the Rev. Stephen Marosi, pastor of the High Falls Reformed Church, and interment will be in the High Falls Cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mr. Stenzel is survived by one sister, Mrs. Kroedel, of Stamford.

Slight Losses on Tuesday Reported

Stocks eased for slight losses Tuesday in lessened trading, volume for the day being 1,290,000 shares as against 1,110,000 Monday. Industrials were off 0.10 point for the day to 130.38 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails declined 0.43, to 24.57; utilities were fractionally lower, to 20.60. Government bonds were irregularly higher, but corporates declined. London market was easier, Paris irregular, Amsterdam firm. Domestic wheat futures were easier; Minneapolis weak. Cotton and silk were weak and rubber showed a loss for the day for the first time in two weeks.

The rails made a much better showing in May, as compared with the preceding month, than earlier reports indicated. Total net operating income for class 1 roads may reach $17,000,000 vs. $9,236,818 in April and $43,662,959 year ago.

Opinion in the auto industry is seen as favoring a price schedule for 1939 models which will pass on to customers the actual savings in material costs which have developed recently. These savings, however, are not large; it is figured that the recent reductions in steel quotations will effect a saving of only about $3 a car on the average cost of producing the 1939 models. In addition, it is stated that the increases in prices of automobiles last autumn did not cover the full rise in costs up to that time. Some officials are opposed to any price cuts until a downward adjustment in basic labor costs are possible.

The recent action of U. S. Steel in eliminating price differentials between Pittsburgh and other plants will benefit the leading companies, notably U. S. Steel, whose plants are scattered. The discarding of what has been known as the "Pittsburgh plus" plan of basing point practice has created a new situation in the matter of competition and earnings and may result in a minor price war. One effect may be the changing of transport routes and relocating of plants.

Masonite reports net of $797,623 for 40 weeks to June 4, vs. $1,318,081 a year ago. Pennsylvania Power & Light earned $7,771,731 in 12 months to May 31, vs. $7,941,885 in preceding year. In the same year Tennessee Pub. Service earned $508,141, compared with $382,605 year before. Mueller Brass had net of $87,933, or 33 cents a share in May 1937, compared with $54,032, or 13.30 cents a share year ago. Wilson & Co. omitted quarterly dividend on $6 par cumulative preferred, due at this time.

New York Supreme Court Justice Cullilo yesterday, in a sweeping labor decision, issued injunctions restricting all picketing of a group of chain stores by CIO members on the grounds that such action was illegal because of "aggravated abuse of the right to picket."

Trustees of the New Haven have applied to the ICC for authority to issue and sell $1,840,000 of four per cent equipment trust certificates to be used in connection with the purchase of 50 light-weight passenger coaches.

Department of Commerce reports show average daily sales of chain drug stores during May were off 11.6 per cent as compared with the same month last year. Fountain sales showed the largest decrease.

Graduation to Be Held At West Hurley School

West Hurley, June 29.—Henry Morton Robinson, of Woodstock, who is associate editor of The Readers' Digest, will address the graduating class of the West Hurley school Friday evening. Trustees Clayton W. Vredenburg, of the local school board, will give the diplomas.

Those graduating are: Eleanor Carroll, Edward Dunn and Dorothy Emig.

Augustus Cole, 94, Returns to "Battle"

Ulster Park, June 29.—Scenes of the greatest battle in the Civil War will come to life in this village when Gettysburg, Pa., observes the 75th anniversary of the event and pays tribute to the 50,000 men who were killed and wounded.

By the side of the veteran, who is now 94 years old, will stand his son, Frank Cole, who left with him today on the trip. The union soldier will be an honored guest of the government during the celebration which opens Friday and continues until July 4.

The trip, the elder Mr. Cole says, will be the last he will make to the historic site, and he plans to take part in the parade and other events on the program there.

Peculiar Accident Is Investigated by Sheriff's Office

Bjorne Aanning of 632 171st street, New York city, came to Williams Lake Sunday to remain over the week-end of the Fourth. Monday afternoon about five o'clock he left to walk to Rosendale to see a friend from the city who was staying there. It was some two hours later that he came back to Williams Lake, made his way upstairs and pounded on the door of a friend.

The latter came out to find Aanning in a dazed condition and blood dripping on to the floor from a deep cut in the back of his head.

The injured man was taken to the Kingston Hospital and the sheriff's office notified. Aanning seemed to remember little of what had happened except that on his way back he had gone up a flight of stairs; the next thing he knew he was looking up and saw a lot of timber, he said. He did not know what had happened.

Exhibition Game Thursday Is Off
Manager Fred Davi of the Knights of Columbus team in the City League today said that he had conferred with Jack Dawkins of the Kyanite team and an agreement was made not to play the exhibition game at the Athletic Field Thursday evening.

The Knights and Dawkins were to meet in an exhibition game for the benefit of the league to give the fans a chance to see the clubs in action as opponents. Davi had protested a previous game, but Dawkins was given credit for the "win" on a forfeit.

Thursday evening the Kingston Colonials, also managed by Davi, will play the Mohawk Colored Giants on Pan-Am Field.

Kingston K. of C. Plans to Observe Cornerstone Rite

A quarter of a century ago next month, on July 13, 1913, the cornerstone of Kingston Council K. of C. Home was laid with impressive ceremonies by the Right Rev. Monaghan John J. Hickey, who was then chaplain.

The laying of the cornerstone of the building at the corner of Broadway and Andrew street, culminated many years of planning by the members of the local Knights of Columbus. As far back as 1904 the idea of a permanent home for Columbianism in this city was inaugurated by the setting aside of a humble sum to be known as a "building fund." This fund was increased annually until it had grown to a sizable sum in the year 1912 when Grand Knight John E. Mahar assumed the duties of presiding officer.

Deeming it advisable to proceed with the construction of the building, Grand Knight Mahar appointed a building committee consisting of Chairman William D. Cashin, the late Matthew M. Byrne, James F. Dwyer, Thomas J. O'Hara and John B. Rafferty. The committee, fired by enthusiasm, visited council homes throughout the eastern section of the country, obtaining the finer points of construction until they had a definite idea for the Kingston club house. Their ideas were sketched by Chairman William D. Cashin and the construction of the building began.

Kingston Council, since grown to one of the largest councils of the Knights of Columbus in the order, will take official cognizance of this 25th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone by a fitting program of celebration which will be announced later. Grand Knight Joseph J. Murphy has appointed P. C. K. Joseph F. Sullivan, original chairman of the cornerstone laying observance, chairman of this 25th anniversary celebration. Other members of the council working on this committee are: The Rev. B. C. Roth, the Rev. Henry E. Herdgen, District Deputy John C. Mahony, Grand Knight Joseph J. Murphy, Deputy Grand Knight Joseph F. Stout, William A. Kelly, Edmund J. O'Reilly, Walter L. Foster, John P. Whalen, Thomas J. Plunket, James F. Farrell, Cornelius E. Enright, James F. White, J. Addison Freer, John J. Egan, Salim G. Krayem, Edward J. Hanley, Ambrose J. Boyd, Edward P. Murphy, Past Grand Knight James J. O'Connor, John E. Mahar, P. T. Murphy, William H. Grogan, E. Frank Flanagan, William B. Byrne, Florian P. Wingert, Bernard A. Feeney, William F. Lee, Allen A. Baker, Matthew V. Cahill, Robert A. Donnarumma and Andrew T. Gilday. Besides Chairman Sullivan the following original cornerstone committee members are also on the present committee: William B. Martin, Frank L. Meagher, Martin J. Cashin and L. E. Dunne.

Announce Card Party.
Atharathian members will hold a lawn card party Thursday evening at Mrs. Bertha Ellison's home, 29 Flatbush avenue, at 7:30 o'clock. If rainy it will be held Friday evening indoors. Members and the public are invited.

About a green Eskimo in Greenland

An Eskimo in Greenland had his first glimpse of a telephone when a group of explorers built a line between their living quarters and a meteorological station.

After some coaxing, the Eskimo was persuaded to try it. No sooner had he spoken a few words into the mouthpiece than he began running lickety split along the path of the telephone line. He said he was anxious to see if he could get to the other end of the wire in time to hear himself come out!

Actually, the telephone voice travels at from 10,000 to 186,000 miles a second, depending upon whether it moves through cables, open wire or the air. Either way the speed is so great that you can't notice any difference. But a difference you are aware of is the speed of connection today compared with what it was a few years ago, particularly on out-of-town calls. The average out-of-town connection now takes only 64 seconds while you hold the line. New York Telephone Company.

Mayor Hollings Set Pace For Workers at City Hall

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Mayor Thomas L. Hollings' surprise visit to city hall at 8:30 a. m. the day after his election last November has become merely an unpleasant memory now to most of the city's employees (who were late to work).

The new mayor ruled that city workers must get to work earlier, or else.

Recently Hollings paid another surprise visit. This one was at 8 a. m.

He found, he said, nearly every department head with his nose to the grindstone a half hour ahead of time. In addition, scores of other employees already were at their desks.

Stamps In The News

By James B. Mather

Since 1923 the League of Nations and the International Labor Office at Geneva have used ordinary Swiss stamps overprinted "Societe des Nations" and "S. d. N. Bureau international du Travail."

Fischer and printed by heliogravure in two colors by Courvoisier.

The 20-cent buff and red stamp shows a view from Lake Geneva of the International Labor Office. The 1-franc buff and greenish black has a picture of this monument to the memory of Albert Thomas, first director of the office, in the foreground. Both values bear the initials "B.I.T."

The 30c light and dark blue carries a striking view of the League of Nations building in Geneva, with the snow-capped Jura mountains in the background. The 60c buff and brown shows another view of the league buildings. These two stamps have the initials "S.D.N." included in the design.

Surinam Slavery Recalled.

During the American Civil war, when slavery was a burning issue, Dutch Guiana (Surinam) was freeing its slaves. Recently this Netherlands colony of South America's coast, which is about the size of Illinois, issued a set of four stamps to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the abolition of slavery within its boundaries.

The 2½-cent dark green shows a symbolic broken chain and bird in flight, with "Emancipation" below and the dates "1863-1938" above. The other three values—3c purple black, 5c brown and 7½c slate blue—depict the head of a young native girl, her hair in braids.

Surinam, which has about 155,000 people, grows sugar cane, cocoa and coffee, and produces rum, molasses and gold. Its first stamps, issued in 1873, pictured the profile of Holland King William III.

President No. 4.

The 4-cent stamp of the new presidential series, bearing a picture of a portrait bust of James Madison, is going to be pink instead of brown like the current Taft 4-center. Mr. Farley says. The inscription will be "James Madison 1809-1876" and the design will be similar to the earlier stamps of this set. This one goes on sale July 1 at Washington.

WHITFIELD

Whitfield, June 29—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Henderson attended the graduation of Bruce Henderson at Marion, Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Montena DeWitt, of Zena, spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis and daughter.

Mrs. John Winchell spent Friday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hall Davis and family moved into their new home Saturday.

Mrs. Della Davis spent Sunday with Mrs. Stella Anderson.

Byron Barley returned to Rochester last Sunday after spending two weeks' vacation at the Hornbeck home.

CROWN PRINCE CAN TAKE IT

This beaming smile hid all traces of the painful kidney ailment which forced Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden (above) to speak by telephone from his stateroom in the liner Kungholm at dedication of the Swedish-American historical museum in Philadelphia. After the address, the Crown Prince came to New York for hospital treatment.

Decision Delayed On Bus Tickets

Albany, June 29 (Special)—Decision has been reserved by the Public Service Commission in the proceedings brought by the commission to determine if omnibus corporations in New York state should be required to adopt a uniform system of rules providing for redemption of unused tickets, and to ascertain just and reasonable rules for the redemption of unused bus tickets.

At a public hearing in the State Office Building here Tuesday, Clinton D. Dominick, of Harriman, president of the Hudson Transit Lines, told Commissioner George E. Lunn who presided, that the problem of the "original purchaser" is a major one. It was stated that taxi drivers in the territory served by Hudson Transit Lines, take tokens in payment of fares, and then turn in large quantities for redemption. It was suggested by Mr. Dominick that any Public Service Commission order permit a 15 per cent reduction in fare value of tokens at redemption for agents' commission.

M. L. Weiner of Highland Falls, appearing for Storm King Stages, also stressed the difficulty of ascertaining the original purchaser of tickets, and the purpose for which part of the ticket has been used.

Of 214 companies examined by R. F. Buckman of the commission's staff, 54 made no provision for refunds in their tariffs; 79 would give back the full price of an unused ticket or deduct only transportation used on a partly used ticket; 6 will not redeem tickets and 3 deduct agents' commissions.

HIGHLAND NEWS

School-Closing Program Is Given at Highland

Highland, June 29—Class day exercises were conducted Friday night in the Highland Grange hall with an ancient court scene over which the king, Richard Haynes, presided. The class prophecy and history was given by John Sprig, advice to the seniors, Kenneth Relyea; advice to the juniors, Robert Callahan. Amusing gifts were presented to the seniors and faculty. John Sprig was the witsman and the four guards, Thomas Moschetto, Gordon Busch, Gabriel Nails and Dennis Murphy were dressed in armor.

A large audience heard the baccalaureate sermon delivered by the Rev. Deville S. Haynes in the Methodist Church Sunday night, from the subject, "Facing Life." The special music was an anthem, "Are You Able," with the solo part taken by Mrs. Elmer Fisher. Mr. Fisher accompanied at the organ.

MORE SOCIALISM

"Nazism," it will be remembered, is a handy abbreviation of "National Socialism." German socialism takes another significant step in the decree issued on June 23, calling all employable men and women into the service of the state for any work the government chooses to assign them. It becomes effective on July 1 and is intended to "insure a supply of workers for any tasks important to the state." All the drafted men and women will be obliged to work temporarily, it is announced, "under normal labor terms at jobs which are specially assigned to them, or submit themselves to particular training." Inasmuch as it seems to be the nature of Nazism to proceed always at top speed, utilizing all the available power of the state for programs of ever-increasing magnitude, it may be assumed that this drafting of total man-power and woman-power will continue as long as the Hitler system endures.

The German system is not yet "state socialism" in the sense that the Russian system is, but it is obviously moving in that direction. The two countries seem to grow more alike economically and politically, even while they express their mutual horror of each other's institutions. Socialism makes considerable headway, too, even in countries still politically and economically free, such as Sweden, France and England. There, however, it takes the form of social democracy, which is largely voluntary and preserves a high degree of individualism.

COLONIAL FOOLISHNESS

Colonies, it has been proved again and again, often cost their possessors more than they return in profits. All the colonies of the world produce less than three per cent of the world's raw materials, according to Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, political economist at Harvard University. They do, however, have their uses. "In the first place," he explains, "colonies offer what seems an adequate excuse for large public expenditures and thereby furnish a means to cure temporarily the problem of unemployment. Moreover, the administration of colonies furnishes a job outlet for trained middle and upper class people."

There may be another value today. Colonies give prestige and a sense of importance to the countries holding them. This may be a more common reason for wanting them than any of the others usually given. It is doubtless why Mussolini wanted Ethiopia and why Hitler wants to get back Germany's colonies, and it may be why the countries holding more than their share of colonies are unwilling to give up any of them.

HIGHWAY HAROUR-AL-RASCHID

A truck driver in England had a distinguished companion on a recent all-night trip. It was Leslie Burgin, the new British Minister of Transport. They drove for seven hours along the London-Birmingham highway, the most commercially used road in the country. When he returned, the minister reported that he had seen half a dozen cases of bad driving, but all of them had been committed by the drivers of private cars. He was impressed by the skill and carefulness of the truck driver.

"If the average owner-driver could back and manipulate into narrow places as the drivers of these lorries do, the roads would be much safer," was his comment. The trip on the truck is only one of his personal investigations. Mr. Burgin has made several air inspections over Britain's trunk highways and surveyed the numerous roads by automobile. He spent a day on the Caledonian Canal to get acquainted with water transportation. The truck trip completed his personal tours in behalf of better traffic conditions.

This is taking the job seriously, and may lead to traffic improvements worth copying over here.

STUPID SPY SYSTEM

As for the current espionage scare, calm-minded citizens hope neither the government nor timid fellow-Americans will get too excited about it. If all the stories and dramas and historical records have foundation in fact, there have always been spies and always will be spies, so long as governments make war or prepare for war.

Isn't it all a little silly, however? Every country studies the same basic mathematics and chemistry. All of them today, doubtless, have their best aeronautical engineers at work on the designing of the finest possible types of military planes, for bombing, for pursuit, and so on. Doubtless, too, all of them are at work on the problem of defense against aerial aggression. It seems possible, even likely, that the same progress is made along these lines almost at the same time in all the countries working at them.

Wouldn't it be a good idea for the nations to do away with the psychologically bad spy system and simply pool their secrets? Then every government could concentrate on speed and efficiency of manufacture and soundness of training for aviators without wasting so much energy wondering what the others are doing.

The war to make the world safe for autocracy isn't won yet.

Somebody wonders why the Roosevelt boys haven't married into the families of foreign royalty. Oh, they just seem to prefer domestic royalists.

Ecuador and Peru have ordered retirement of their border troops. It would be wonderful if guards on all the national borders could go home and go to bed.

Another precaution for Aryan purity—the Nazis are barring Jews from race tracks, book-makers and betting machines.

ASTHMA DUE TO CERTAIN SUBSTANCES

A farm boy living 40 miles from a large city found that during his visits to the city, lasting two or three days to a week, he was absolutely free of asthma, and an examination of his chest by a physician in the city revealed no trace of asthma; yet on the farm asthmatic attacks were frequent and severe. Skin tests were made and it was found that horse dander was the cause of his asthma. Similar cases are often seen now and the offending substances are found to be cat's fur, pollen organisms and gasses in the air, and even certain foods.

Drs. Stanley E. Dorst and Ethel L. Hoppan, University of Cincinnati, in Ohio State Medical Journal, point out that asthma is an individual problem and define asthma as a spasm of part or all of the air tubes going down to the lungs. When the spasm occurs the air, of course, cannot get out of the lungs. Thus air remains in the lungs that should come out and naturally as it is not as rich in oxygen as it should be the blood circulating in the lungs does not get properly purified.

The cause of the spasm that closes or partly closes the air tubes and causes the violent coughing in an effort to get a free passage of air is often sensitiveness to foods, pollens, extracts used on the skin, gasses in the air, and bacteria—small organisms.

Drs. Dorst and Hoppan report 62 cases which were extensively studied. All the patients had well established asthma of at least two years' duration before treatment was given. As all cases of asthma are not due to this sensitiveness to certain substances, each of these cases had been given skin tests and shown to be sensitive to a particular substance and then was treated by vaccines of that particular substance—food, pollen, bacteria—for four to eight months.

Thirty of the sixty-two patients were improved; twenty-two were distinctly better, that is they had a light attack of asthma occasionally, and ten cases showed no improvement. The thirty patients who are well had an average period of treatment lasting over fifteen months. Of the twenty-two who are improved but not cured a large proportion did not continue treatment for over three months because they felt so much better.

The point then is that a certain number of asthma cases are due to sensitiveness to substances and vaccines of these substances used for a certain length of time will cure half the cases and cause improvement in one-third more.

FOOD ALLERGY

"What if one man's food is another man's poison?" is an old saying but the truth of it is being proved almost daily by leading research physicians throughout the world. Some individuals are over-sensitive to certain foods and other substances and will have asthmatic attacks, head colds, snuffy noses, pains in abdomen, when they eat these foods. "Food Allergy" (No. 106) by Dr. Barton tells how to discover the offending foods and what to do about them. You may obtain this booklet by sending ten cents for each copy to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of this newspaper.

OCTAGON HOUSE
BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLORChapter 47
Asey Finds Some Clues

RODDY, Asey felt sure, had come to the garage after Marina's murder, and his plane wrecking and all the rest had been inspired by his more or less justifiable fear that he would be arrested for the killing. He paid his hush money to Nettie because he was scared stiff.

Jack Lorne might have gone to Roddy's, he might have sunk through the woods near the Heplewhites'. But it was Asey's guess that Lorne had been summoned on the phone by Roddy, and that he had immediately returned home when Roddy—probably already dead in the garage, or at least already there with someone else—failed to show up.

While he and the rest raced their heads off, chasing Jennings, rescuing troopers, pulling Aaron out of cellars, hunting gold keys, during all that the murderer was laughing up his sleeve. Why shouldn't he? He'd covered his tracks as nicely as anyone could. He hadn't thrust any obstacles around that would trip him up later. He hadn't tried to thwart anyone. He hadn't left any clues.

But he must have left clues. You couldn't kill two people, ruin a mural, burn a barn, steal a gold key from a Congressman, drawings from an artist, and a hush money door—you couldn't begin to do all those things without slipping up somewhere.

Wearily, Asey forced his mind back to Friday night and the beginning of everything.

He had worked his way up to the barn burning when he heard two cars pull up in his drive.

"Hanson," Asey murmured grimly to himself as he went to answer the knocker. "Hanson, jubilant as a crow!"

Far from being pleased with himself and his solution, Hanson was worried.

"Asey," he said, "I'm stuck. Did Cummings tell you about Lorne? Well, it won't work. It ought to, but—my God, you've got to believe him! Lorne claims that Roddy called him up and urged him to come over on a matter of great importance. Lorne didn't want to, he said, because he was busy working on a picture for someone's dining room—now, isn't that crazy?"

"Not," Asey returned, "if you've had many deals with Lorne, it ain't. But he went just the same?"

"Roddy kept calling and calling. So Lorne went, at last. When Roddy didn't show up by the boat-house, where he said he'd be, why Lorne turned around and came home, and went back to work on his picture. That's his story, and he's sticking to it. And I can't break it. We can't. None of us can change a thing, and honestly, Asey, I'm beginning to think that he's telling the truth! What do you think?"

"There's the matter of his drawings," Asey said. "Someone burned 'em, ain't it? Jennings. An' the mural, it's been painted out, you know. I think both of 'em have got something to do with this affair, an' I think Lorne's the last person to harm his own work."

"I guessed something happened to the mural," Hanson said. "Look, can I come in and talk things over with you? I've got pictures of the mural, they just came from Boston. Asey, if you think there's any dew in this thing, will you look?"

Asey spread the photographs out on the kitchen table.

"These side panels," he said to Hanson, "are the ones I think. Now, let's see. This one here's all Pilgrims an' Indians an' history, local faces. That's past history, I guess, an' this one's the future, with more local faces. Yup, here's Jennings as Industry Mending the Leaking Pipes of Civilization!"

Look!

"Where's Pam Frye and her father?"

"They're in the main one," Asey said. "She's one of them tired-looking women that's sturmin' things in the kettle, an' he's either Time or the tax collector, floatin' on top. Oh, here's Peg Boone, on the history side. She's the Indian girl skinnin'—Hanson, what'n time is that critter she's skinnin'?"

"It might be a bear or anything," Hanson said. "It's got four front legs. She looks pretty good, compared to some. He did her a lot better than Pam. Asey, there's the milkman, and here's the Portygee we ran in so many times for boot-legging."

"At the end of an hour, Hanson signed."

"I can't make anything out of this," he said. "Not a thing. Can you? Oh, don't tell me you're going to tell me all over again! Don't! Tell me more about the ambergis part of things. That ambergis gets me!"

"It gets me, too," Asey said. "Hanson, I wish we had Lorne here. I'd like to know for sure what was what and who was who."

"Lorne's out in the car with my fellows," Hanson said. "I'll bring him in."

Lorne's general annoyance, anger and irritation all characteristically gave way to pleasure at the excellence of the photographs.

AGRICULTURE

Uncle Ab says you are young enough and rich enough if you have health and no debts.

The tenth annual Cornell school for missionaries takes place from January 23 to February 18, 1939.

One of the main reasons for roughage of low feeding value is late cutting of the timothy and mixed-hay crop.

More than 2,000 acres of potatoes, belonging to 421 growers, were sprayed last year in New York state by 32 potato-spray rigs.

Broodiness may be a serious handicap on egg production during the summer months, especially among the heavy breeds, like New Hampshire and Rhode Island Reds.

"Get going," Asey said, "an' name people! Hustle!"

"Why should I—"

"Name people," Asey said, "or I go out a paddle!"

With very bad grace, Lorne went through the series of pictures.

"Now," Hanson said when he got through, "what good did all that do? We're back just where we started, Asey. We are right back!"

"No, we ain't!" Asey said suddenly. "No surebop! Hanson, we been goin' at this from the wrong angle! It wasn't the way the person was pictured as a person, but the way they was pictured, an' what it told!"

"What? What? You—"

Before Asey could explain, the door knocker sounded again. "See," Asey pointed gleefully. Hanson looked, and his mouth opened. "My God—but how can you prove—oh, damn that person, he'll have that door down!"

"Will go," Asey said. "Jennie Mayo and her pint-sized husband, Syl, stood on the doorstep."

"Look at you!" Jennie said. "Still in them paint duds! An' you ain't been to bed tonight, have you? Oh, it's the police you got in there, is it?"

She bustled into the hall. "Hullo, Mr. Hanson, is it true that Roddy's murder an' you're taken Jack-o-lantern? Oh, I didn't see you Mr. Lorne!"

Hanson grinned. "How do you know so much about things?" he demanded.

"It's the twenty-one party line," Asey said. "She's on it, an' nothin' escapes her."

"Whalin' Book!"

"He's just laughin' at me," Jennie said amiably. "He used to have a phone on that line himself, Mr. Hanson, an' he listened just as much as anyone—say, it's kind of too bad about Roddy, ain't it?"

"Too bad what?" Asey asked, surprised at the sympathetic concern in her voice.

"Why I don't know exactly how to say it," Jennie said, "but the first call I heard this mornin', it sort of seemed there might of been some-thing good to Roddy, after all. Seems like he'd been trying to—well, not exactly to reform, but kind of make an effort."

"What kind of an effort?" Asey ignored Hanson's signal to ease Jennie into the kitchen.

"Well, it seems that Saturday mornin', he went into the library—you know, the one that his father gave the town? He'd never set foot in it before, an' Miss Perkins said that Roddy was sort of embarrassed, like. He come in the library an' wanted a book."

"So he could read, could he?" Asey said.

"I think you're horrid, talkin' that way about the dead! Anyway, he asked for that book that his grandfather wrote, and was just as nice as he could be. Left some money for a new encyclopedia, too. He said the one they had wasn't no good. An' he said he'd have the whalin' book rebound in leather with nice gold trimmings before he returned it—wasn't that nice of him?"

"Jennie," Asey said, "who built Octagon House?"

"Who? I don't know!"

Asey took her by the shoulders and propelled her to the phone.

"See that?" he said. "Well, you go ring the twenty-one line, man by man. You find out, Jennie, who built the Octagon House! Hurry!"

"But—"

"You find out," Asey said, "I'll do anything you want."

"Will you," Jennie asked, "put on some decent clothes before the reporters take pictures of you?"

"White flannels, an' a blue coat," Asey promised, "an' my best yachting cap. Now, get goin'. Don't ask questions now, Hanson. Wait'll we see if this turns out—yousee, he didn't know about the ambergis, at first. That is, he didn't know the value."

"Who didn't?"

"Roddy," Asey said. "Then, after his plane crash, an' before he begun flingin' money to Nettie, an' offerin' rewards, an' bein' so lavish—sure, he'd bind it in gold! Why not? He remembered his grandfather's book, see? About whalin', an' ambergis. Looked up ambergis in an encyclopedia, too, an' don't you see? It was Roddy who moved that ambergis out of the barn. Roddy Strutt! Roddy found out by then how much the ambergis was worth! An' Roddy has his savin' streak, an' the family yet to get money—Roddy moved it! I knew there had to be another person, an' some reason for him bein' killed! Got someone, Jennie!"

"Well, if it don't beat all," Jennie said. "The line was busy—I thought it would be, it most always is. But Emmaline, up to the office—she hadn't gone home yet, she phoned her great-aunt for me!"

"Who built Octagon House?"

"Earl Jennings' father, he built it. But I'm sure I don't know—"

"Hanson," Asey said happily, "that's where we start in our provin'!"

HEARTBREAK HIGHWAY

By BRESSLER

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Alfred Hitchcock

is back in town. Just stopping over. The British movie director, who turned in "The 39 Steps" and some other superb blood-curdlers, is going to Hollywood. It's his first trip to Hollywood, although he's been in the motion picture game 19 years.

He hasn't changed much. He's added seven pounds but you wouldn't notice. He weighs 278 pounds—"stripped and official," he says. He still thinks that the American steak is the best in the world, that hanging's too good for a director of color pictures who'll splash sunsets and red hunting coats on the screen.

He still likes to shock. Last year, overlooking the city from a friend's penthouse balcony, he told me that the ultimate in color movie drama would be a drop of blood on a daisy petal. This year his fancy is more subdued, but no less free.

"Now," he says, "I think the perfect subject for color would be an oyster. A touch of green would indicate that the oyster was bad and there would be your drama. I should like to film rain in color."

ALL that controversy stirred up by Sam Goldwyn about whether English pictures are better than Hollywood's leaves Hitchcock cold.

"Typing is the real evil," he says. "If you have the same people, you have the same story. If the movies seem to have 'stales,' it's because the same people keep moving through them in the same fashion."

Hitchcock brought over with him a print of his latest picture, "The Wheel Spins," but he didn't tell me much about it, except that it was inspired by the "vanishing lady" story which Alexander Woolcott popularized.

MY FAVORITE interview pastime is picking out Hitchcockisms. In several years of passing the time of day with the director who has our bouquet for being the best across the water and probably the best anywhere if they can ever persuade him to try the Hollywood system, I've collected quite a few.

"A worm will turn all right—but if you tread on it, it just spreads."

"It's not true that I'm a woman-hater. I hate ladies—on the screen and off."

"I'm not really a heavy eater—unless you mean that I'm heavy and I eat."

"I'm leaving New York to get rid of claustrophobia, batophobia, hypochondria and vertigo. In Hollywood I'll probably acquire agoraphobia as a counter-balance."

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—By a harmonious little departmental agreement, members of Congress are given a two-hour "beat" on announcement of grants of WPA or PWA money to their home states. The result is that instead of the home paper simply announcing that a PWA grant of $5,432.37 has been made for a sewer in Burrs Crossing, a vote-pulling place like the following may come out:

"Rep. Jerry Doodle announced today that the PWA had granted $5,432.37 to build a sewer in Burrs Crossing."

But reporters covering the departments are already shaking down the agreement. They don't like to be held off for two hours, even for the benefit of desperate congressmen.

Slums Near Capitol

SENATOR SCHWELLENBACH of Washington was stopped dead in his tracks in a capitol corridor by a 15-year-old girl he had known since she was a tot. "Why," she asked, "does the government spend so much on Senators when there are hundreds of people living in slums within three blocks of the capitol?"

He didn't have much of an answer for her. There ARE slums within three blocks.

Dreadful place in Washington just now is the cavernous capitol building. Except when the tourists troop through, it is so quiet a person can stand on the first floor and hear steps echoing along the tiled corridors of the third floor.

A few members of Congress bob in from time to time, mostly Senators. House members have high-tailed it home. Every one of them has to stand for election. Only a third of the Senators are so trapped each election year.

Steel gates have been drawn across entrances to the Senate and House restaurants. Here and there on the tables a random glass or plate remains to collect dust until the 76th congress comes next January.

"Twas A Famous Victory

THERE is plenty of noise at times. Tourist parties are led through at frequent intervals by guides with loud, harangue voices. "This is a painting of the battle of Lake Erie in the war of 1812. The man standing in the rowboat is 28-year-old Commodore Perry, being conveyed from his sinking flagship to another ship that carried him to victory over the British. Painted in eighteen fluffy fuh at a cost of putty-huh thousand eight hundred dollars, it is one of the largest panels in the capitol."

The party moves on to rest for a moment in forlorn quiet in the Senate gallery while the guide explains where such and such famous Senators sit—when Congress is in session.

Home Camp Plans Near Completion

Further details have been worked out for the Y. W. C. A. Stay-at-Home Camp for grade school girls which opens Tuesday, July 5, and continues for three weeks. The camp affords an excellent opportunity for girls to enjoy many of the advantages of a girls' camp without the necessity and expense of going away from their families.

The program includes swimming and out-of-door activities along with handicraft, interpretive dancing, music, and dramatics.

Mrs. Harwood Lignall is chairman of the camp committee and Miss Jean Estey and Miss Lilian Herdman of the Y. W. C. A. staff will have general supervision over all activities. The head swimming counselor will be Miss Priscilla Nolan, a student at Radcliffe College, who for three years has been a junior counselor.

The graduates will be in charge of Miss Mary Staples, who has taken post-graduate courses along this line and who will be assisted by Miss Ruth Flicker, a graduate of Middlebury College. The dancing classes will again be under the direction of Miss Ottilia Rincoboni, always a popular teacher with the girls at the association. A corps of junior counselors will also assist with the program.

The camp will be held Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, two of the days being spent at Spring Lake, and two at the association building. A committee of board and interested friends transport the children to the activities held away

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Registration is open to children in the grade schools, minimum age 9 years, and should be made this week. Further details may be had by calling the "Y", 1911.

Wittenberg June 29.—The Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club will hold a trap shoot on the club grounds July 4.

There will be two ball games, a softball contest and a game between the Calao Pioneers of Kingston. Also there will be several exhibitions by the Kingston Y. M. C. A. members in the swimming pool, which has been repainted and is now ready for use for the summer.

In the evening there will be square and round dancing in the club house, with music by Grant Decker's orchestra (The Bronx-casting Yagabonds), featuring Rita Becker and Margaret Wilbur. A community fireworks display will be held.

Sound System Improved.

The loud speaking system in the municipal auditorium has been improved extensively and at the commencement exercises of the Kingston High School held there last evening the speakers' voices were carried to all parts of the hall and were clearly and audibly heard. David Peeter, installer of the system, has been receiving congratulations all day as to the results of the improvement.

Drill and Pay Checks.

The regular drill of Headquarters Battery and Battery A will be held this evening at the armory. Drill checks for both batteries will be distributed at the drills.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen June 29.—The Rev. George Herms and family plan to leave Thursday morning for western Michigan, where they plan to spend their vacation with relatives. The Rev. Mr. Herms is scheduled to attend the annual conference of the Presbytery of the Hudson Valley, which is sponsored by the Presbyterian Seminary under the leadership of Dr. John T. Daily, Stony Brook. The conference will be held in Chicago July 25-30.

A large number of people from this place attended the commencement exercises of St. Mary's School in Kingston Sunday afternoon. A large number also attended the graduation exercises of the Kingston High School the first of the week. A number of students from Port Ewen graduated from each of these schools.

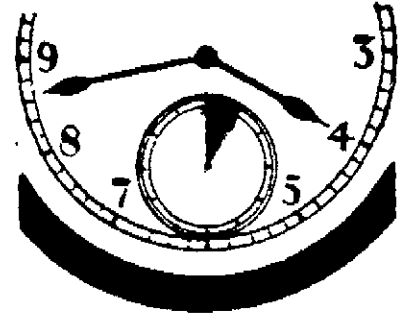

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Short and son, Albert, of Kingston spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Short.

Port Ewen Public Library will be closed Monday, July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Short and family will spend Tuesday evening with Mrs. John Short and Mr. Ann E. Short in Coltonville.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Van Lennep and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Reynolds who are celebrating their silver wedding anniversary today.

Beginning Tuesday, July 5, the Kingston City Library will close at 5 p. m. instead of 6 o'clock until after 1 hour day.

Woodstock Playhouse Ready For Opening on Thursday

Woodstock, June 28.—The new "Woodstock Playhouse," which will open Thursday night under the direction of Robert Elwyn, is a structure built on two agreeable principles, one to make its practical, the other to make it beautiful. Albert Edward Milliken, its architect, explains this as "functional architecture," which permits the designer to take working requirements and design the building to suit.

The arched brown and green building is well located in Woodstock, adjoining the country club and the tavern. Its circular shape is well suited to the mountains which act as its background. On entrance, one finds the semi-circular lobby, with cobweb design to ceiling. The lobby gives access to six dressing rooms, spacious and well enough furnished to delight the most temperamental star.

The lobby also gives access to the center of the auditorium, which is constructed on arched trusses, entirely eliminating the necessity of posts, and giving a sense of spaciousness. The scarlet velvet curtain is a delight to see, the blue cushions on the seats add not only to the color scheme, but to the comfort. The proscenium arch measures 34 feet across, which is one of the largest of any summer theatre in the country.

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," initial production of the new "Woodstock Playhouse," under the direction of Robert Elwyn, is a comedy which was praised highly by New York critics. In a merrily, mischievous mood, Ellen Murray, a streamlined daughter of today, tells her mother the facts of life and incidentally that she is about to elope on a premarital honeymoon before her sweetheart departs for a two-years' job abroad.

Playing the part are Frank Rothe and Velma Royton, giving a Woodstock audience for the fifth consecutive year. Betty Macdonald and Robin Batcheller make their bow in Woodstock for the third year. Harry Young and Charlotte Fitch make their debuts in Woodstock with this comedy.

Because of an assurance of an overflow, there have been no reservations made on seats. On opening night, the box office will be open from 7:30 o'clock on, to take care of all those who wish to witness the opening of Woodstock's new theatre.

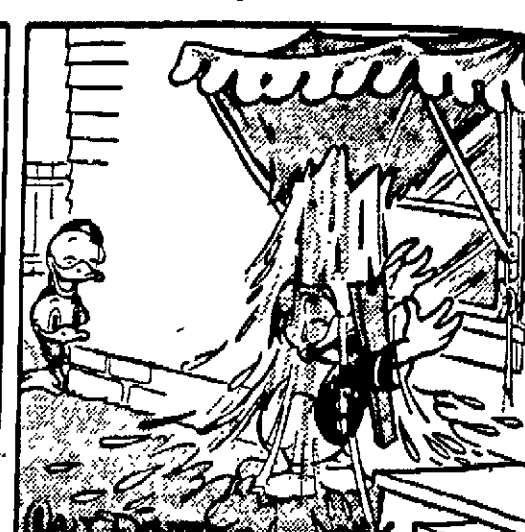

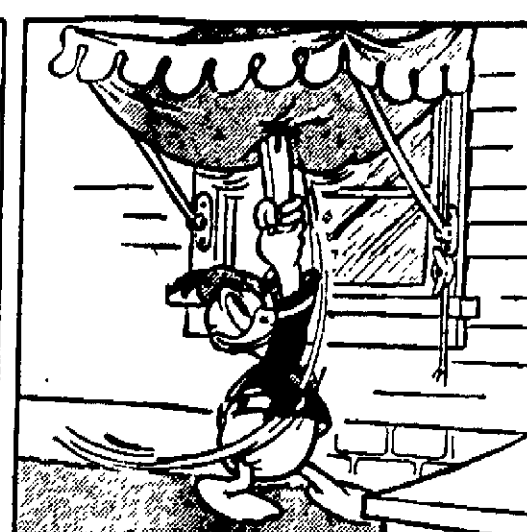

Implies Credit

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Neither the New Deal nor the city administration which built Buffalo's new $15,000,000 sewer system will get credit for it when a bronze tablet is set into the wall of the pumping station some day soon. The sewer authority members decided that the plaque will name only the authority, itself, and the engineers. Any credit due the city administration and the P. W. A., which supplied funds, should be implied rather than expressed, the members of the authority decided.

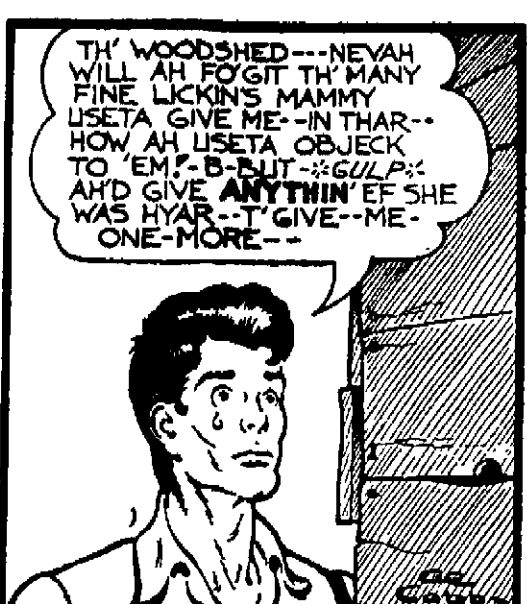

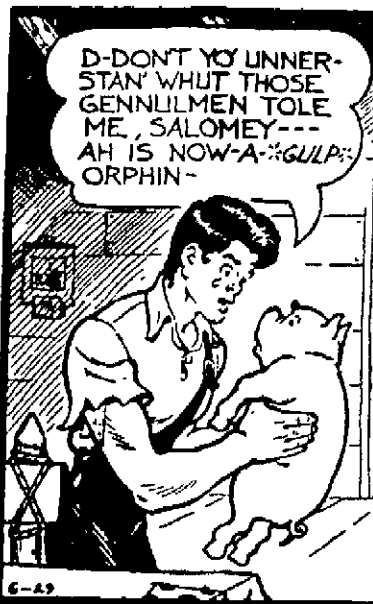

Creek Burns

Colonie, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Great clouds of black smoke rose from the creek that flows through the shops of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad Company here. The creek was burning, all right—but company officials explained it was just a periodic cleanup of accumulated oil from the plant which floats on the stream and might become a fire hazard unless burned off.

OFFICE CAT
By Junius

OK
God's seal is set on every man
Who does the very best he can.

Aunt Kate—When I was younger I could have married any man I pleased.

Little Junior—Didn't you please anybody, Aunt Kate?

No matter how much or how little you get, there is always opportunity for saving. It's the small amounts you lay away that count in the long run. Just save one penny out of every dollar you get; it will be an excellent example for the other 99 cents.

Mike—What makes you so heavy, Junior?

Junior—My dad says I have an iron constitution.

The successful man was lecturing to an admiring audience: Successful Man (concluding): I must say that I owe everything I have to my wife.

Tradesman (at the back of the hall)—Hey, you're not forgetting my bill, are you?

Personal—Gentleman with half bottle French vermouth would like to meet lady with half bottle of dry gin. Object, cocktail.

Hal—Well, so Sally is really going to get married? Who's the lucky man?

Jack—Her father, of course.

Read it or not:
An egg weighing half a pound and measuring eight by nine inches was laid by a hen owned by George Garrison, a farmer near Albany, N. Y.

Earl—Say, haven't I seen that face of yours some place else?

Myrl—Nope, I've never been anywhere but where it is now.

Of all the things you wear, your expression is the most important. The next time you catch a glimpse of yourself in a store window or counter mirror, skip the glance at your hat angle and check up on the expression just below—Jane Lane in Collier's.

A sailor was admitted to a hospital but soon recovered from his ailment. He liked hospital life so much, however, that nothing would induce him to leave the establishment. He faked illness so cleverly that the doctors could not get past him.

At last a new doctor came and was told the facts of the case. He immediately went to see the patient and began to measure him. The man looked on with interest and asked why he was being measured.

Doctor—You can never recover, and we are too merciful to allow patients to linger long in such suffering. I am taking your measurements for a casket.

The sailor left that night.

July 4th Program At Wittenberg Club

Woodstock, June 29.—Wittenberg is planning to celebrate the Fourth of July in the grand manner this year. An all-day series of events and activities has been planned, and sponsored by "Gus" Shultis and the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club, Walter Angeline, president.

Mr. Shultis has again succeeded in making available the old Camp Keawanna property, on Yanketown Point for the recreational use of all comers. The huge swimming pool has been conditioned for the summer and will be available for the use of all guests on the Fourth. A series of diving and swimming events will take place. It is expected that the majority of the expert swimmers will come from the Kingston Y. M. C. A., but anyone who would like to compete is cordially invited. It is hoped that a local bathing beauty contest can be organized too.

The baseball diamond has been put into excellent shape and will be heavily utilized. There will be a softball game played between the Wittenberg Club and the Kingston Y. M. C. A. Another game of baseball is also being arranged.

In the evening there will be a hot dog and marshmallow roast on the camp grounds. Great stacks of firewood have been assembled for the purpose.

The boy members of the Wittenberg Junior Sportsmen's Club have a few stunts up their sleeves to entertain the throng. In the afternoon there will be a trap shoot with prizes. In the evening there will be a square dance at the club house.

What will perhaps prove to be the gala affair of the whole day and most in keeping with the spirit of the day, will be the fireworks display in the evening. Fireworks will be provided by the club and by Gus Shultis, but guests are welcome to bring their own in addition.

Saves Sister
Amsterdam, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—When Stephen J. Blizinski heard screams for help, he promptly jumped into Schoharie creek to the rescue. After swimming about 15 feet he came to a struggling girl. She was his sister. The girl was exhausted but otherwise none the worse for the experience.

Legion Submits Report On Veteran's Work Unit

KINGSTON POST, NO. 150
American Legion, Inc.
Department of New York.

June 28, 1938.

Editor, The Freeman:

Owing to the large amount of unemployment among the Veterans in Kingston, Kingston Post inaugurated its work bureau which started functioning on March 4th, under the able direction of Harry R. Karnaghan as Employment Officer. Active participation in this project was carried on intensively to May 14th, when it actually ceased functioning, although actually we have been continuously placing men since that time.

While we realize that it would be a fine thing if we could carry this work indefinitely, yet the fact that Kingston Post financed this activity out of its own treasury, made it imperative that we cease functioning due to our limited resources. We are proud of the fact that we were able to secure some employment for veterans and did not have to solicit one penny from the business men of Kingston who have been willing to cooperate with us.

Furthermore, we did not conduct this activity with the idea of promoting a membership drive, but purely as a matter of being of service to the unemployed veteran and he, of course, was under no obligation to us.

In behalf of the veterans who secured employment through the efforts of this work bureau, and the committee in charge, may I extend to you our sincere thanks and appreciation for the interest and cooperation you so generously rendered us.

In order that you might be more familiar with the work the bureau accomplished, we are attaching a condensed report of this activity. Should you desire any further information on the subject, will be furnished upon request.

Very truly yours,

H. L. KIRCHNER, Commander.

Kirchner/O.S.
Work Bureau Committee—H. L. Kirchner, chairman; Eugene B. J. Hillis, Jack Rabin, publicity; Harry R. Karnaghan, employment officer; A. J. Murphy, Jr., clerk.

Condensed Report of Veterans' Work Bureau Conducted by Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion.

	Members of Amer. Legion	Not Members of Amer. Legion	Total
Veterans Registered	39	50	80
Persons given employment through our efforts	22	27	49
Persons given permanent employment	9	14	23*
Persons given day work (That Handy Man)	13	18	31*
Persons given day work secured (That Handy Man)			473

*Five veterans given day work were eventually given permanent employment.

Note—The complete achievement of the Work Bureau is not reflected in the above figures as there was no way of ascertaining the number of veterans given permanent employment after May 14th as a result of negotiations of the Bureau, nor was it possible to ascertain the amount of day work given direct by Bureau clients in recommending "That Handy Man" to neighbors and friends.

THE WEEKENDER'S WARDROBE

What a break we get this year with many businesses closing Saturday and the glorious Fourth falling on Monday. That means one thing—a long, and we hope, a fine week-end. Let's make sure when packing our bag that we don't omit the things which will make or mar our holiday.

Here with the same shoes and the trousers of his suit, and a little half sleeve shirt, he's ready for a variety of informal activities.

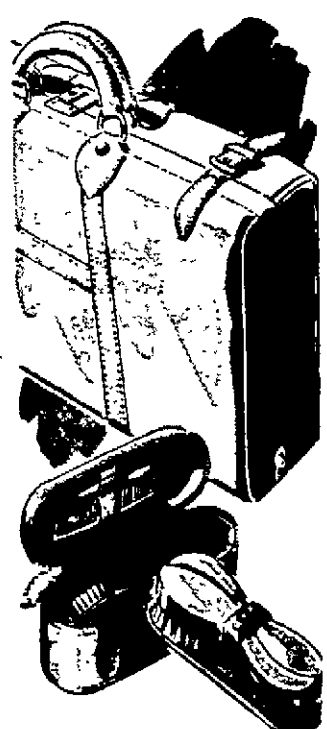

Here we show you a composite sketch of the properly and intelligently equipped weekender. His suit, striped flannel—grey or marine blue—shoes, brown and white, Panama hat. See right and left how this man is equipped to vary his dress for various occasions.

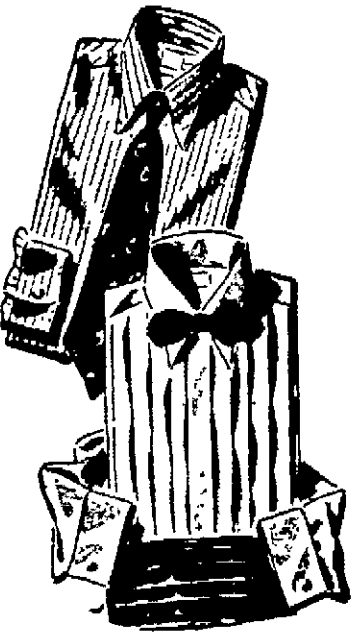

And here with the jacket of his suit—white flannel trousers, a necktie which is a foulard or cotton handkerchief he's beginning to impress people with the scope of his wardrobe.

Don't forget your beach wear—a foulard or lightweight robe, and the swim trunks are well-tailored from a specially created fabric.

Luggage can be a help or a hindrance and the bag shown is designed to carry everything you need for the week-end. A specially designed compartment accommodates three suits. The toilet kit, with novel and compact brushes, takes up next to no space.

Your shirts should be varied enough to accommodate the varied occasions of your week-end and don't overlook a dress shirt for your dinner jacket. If the weather is as warm as we hope for, a cummerbund will be a desirable substitute for your waistcoat.

The Norwegian style shoes are nearly an institution today worn everywhere, and for bedroom as well as beach wear.

Esquire's eti-query

What Is a Boater?

From the beginning of May each year when we start to talk about straw hats, we are continually questioned about our calling the sennit straw a "boater." So here's a fairly complete answer.

The sennit straw was originally English—both in production and the custom of wearing. For the three centuries prior to the present one the making of straw braids was an important industry in England.

Further, straw hats, though of a slightly different shape from the present-day "sennit" were the regulation head-wear of the British navy and it is actually from the navy that we get the name "sennit," the word being a corruption of "seven-knit" which is seaman's vernacular for a certain type of braiding or splicing of rope.

The name "boater" is attributable to Eton, the famous English prep school where on June the 4th, to celebrate the birthday of the fourth of the Georges, the students dress for their boating events in contemporary sailors outfits which included the hat in question.

This custom so far as hats are concerned prevails to this day and thus there is every reason for calling the "seven-knit" or sailor straw, by its Eton name, "boater."

Mills Estate Goes To State as Museum By Deed of Owner

The stately Colonial home of the late Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, located 10 miles north of Poughkeepsie at Staatsburg, has been donated by Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, its owner, to New York State as an historical museum and the surrounding grounds and gardens as a park. The whole gift constitutes a memorial to the parents of Mrs. Phipps, the late Ogden Mills and Ruth Livingston Mills. Mrs. Phipps is a sister of the late Ogden L. Mills.

Known as Endicott Farms, the estate was once the home of General Morgan Lewis, a former governor of New York state and signed on the Declaration of Independence. The estate has been accepted on the state's behalf by Taconic State Park Commission. Regulation of the estate will be in accordance with the terms of the gift and under the jurisdiction of Taconic Park Commission.

On the property is one of the finest collections of native trees in this locality and the avenue of copper beeches is one of the finest in the country. Located on the Hudson river with a magnificent view of the Catskills the property is one of the show places on the river. In front of the mansion are thirty acres of rolling lawns. The estate is joined on the south by Margaret Lewis Morris State Park where picnicking, camping, boating and other recreation accommodations are now provided.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, June 29.—Herbert Cudney of Poughkeepsie, formerly of this place, fell on the lawn and broke his hip. He is in a Poughkeepsie hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lyons and daughter, Janet, were in Kingston Friday.

Mrs. Isaac Jones of Cottekill is visiting her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer L. Jones, here.

Allan Rose of Olive Bridge is hauling all the baggage for the High Point campers.

Mr. and Mrs. Prue of Corona, L. I., have rented the Johnson bungalow for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Eckert of Hunter visited her sister, Mrs. John Hyser, and they all attended the Children's Day exercises at the M. E. Church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Isaac Whitaker and Miss Marilyn, of Poughkeepsie, visited the former's sister, Mrs. Spencer Jones, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hanson and children, Helen and John, visited Kingston Saturday.

The Misses Anna and Betty Gruber and brother, Harold, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Green and her sister, Mrs. Sarah Avery, and Mrs. Ernest Eckert are spending a few days visiting friends and relatives in Endicott.

Mrs. George Sickler is convalescing in the Kingston Hospital after a major operation.

Miss Verna Morris of Olive Bridge is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Amelia Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. William Karas of New York city are occupying the Robert Palen bungalow for the summer.

Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf went to Guiderland in company with her son and daughter-in-law to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Arnold, and family.

Commencement Ball To Be Held Tonight

Walter Kidd Pupils Heard In Musicales

Members of the graduating class of the Kingston High School and alumni of the school will dance tonight at the Municipal Auditorium at the annual commencement ball.

With over 100 couples expected and with George Soura playing the favorite airs of the graduates, the affair promises to be a gala climax to the three days of commencement activities that have been occupying the class of 1938.

Dancing will begin at 8:30 and will last until midnight. Refreshments will be served by the boys' Hi-Y Club. Chaperones for the evening will be Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sylvester, Mrs. Wilson R. Norwood, Miss Florence Baltz, Alfred Bruckert and the class advisor, Theron L. Culver.

The dance will be a program dance with the school colors of maroon and white used on the programs.

Members of the dance committee are the Misses Marjorie Fitzgerald and Irene Cuff and Ray Schneider, chairman, John Hanson, and James Geary.

Proceeding the dance Dr. and Mrs. John P. Larkin, of 14 Pearl street, will entertain some 40 high school students at dinner at their home in honor of their daughter, Miss Jean Larkin, a member of the graduating class.

Several other parties honoring graduates will be given during the remainder of the week.

Ercag-Gersch
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gersch of Red Top announce the marriage of their daughter, Marie, to James Ercag of Marlborough. The ceremony took place Saturday, May 14, in St. Patrick's Church, Newburgh, and was performed by Father John J. O'Brien at 9 o'clock in the evening. A wedding supper was served later at the Clinton Ford pavilion and was attended by members of the family and a few close friends. The bride wore an ensemble of blue with a corsage of pink roses, white carnations and lilies of the valley. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Beller of Newburgh. Mrs. Beller was also gowned in blue with a corsage of flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Ercag will make their home in Newburgh. Mrs. Ercag is a member of this year's graduating class of Highland High School and received her diploma on Tuesday evening.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered the bride at her home two weeks ago by members of the class and faculty.

Card Club Takes Trip

The Tuesday evening bridge motored to Valatie today for luncheon at Rainbow's End Inn. Those making the trip were Miss Madeline Tarrant, Miss Agnes Scott Smith, Miss Grace Reves, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. Irving Smith, Mrs. Joseph McNellis, Mrs. Charles Ellis, Jr., and Mrs. Edwin Lacey.

Garden Club Heats Lecture

Members of the Ulster Garden Club heard a most interesting and enlightening lecture Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Garden Club held at the home of Mrs. C. Victor Livingston. The speaker was Madame Ina Kharbroff, who spoke on the "Russian Imperial Gardens." Interspersed with the lecture was a history of Russia. Peter the Great brought the idea of the gardens to Russia from a visit to Versailles. Being a lover of the sea, Peter located his city near the ocean. Orders were sent to every Russian nobleman living or traveling abroad to send specimens of trees or flowers for the emperor's gardens. Within 16 years there was a fine city with magnificent gardens that were the envy of all Europe. The speaker had lived in St. Petersburg and had left it in 1916, two years before the revolution. She accompanied her lecture with slides, many of which were reproductions of the architect's original drawings. At the conclusion of the talk the hostess served refreshments. She was assisted by Mrs. Eugene L. Hurry, who poured, and Miss Catherine Hasbrouck, who presided over the punch bowl.

Hostess at Luncheon and Bridge

Miss Betty Clarke of Hurley avenue was hostess at luncheon and bridge at the Shop-and-the-Garden Tuesday afternoon in honor of the house guests of Miss Barbara Matthews, Miss Martha Powell, Miss Ann Wheeler and Miss Jane Wheeland. In addition to Miss Matthews and her house guests others present included Miss Barbara Rodie, Miss Martha Jean Bernstein, Miss Gay Chambers and Miss Helene Gregory.

Lucarini-Oliver

Miss Ruth Oliver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius C. Oliver of Hurley was united in marriage to Zeno B. Lucarini of Burlington, Vt., Tuesday, by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seely, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church. They were attended by Miss Margaret Voerg of Saugerties and Cornelius C. Oliver, Jr., brother of the bride.

Three Teachers Retire

Newark, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—School bells have rung for the last time for Elmer Cunningham, Miss Laura Leoux and Miss Sarah Merrick, who retired from classrooms after a combined teaching career of 114 years. Cunningham, after 42 years of teaching said "It's back to the farm for me." Miss Leroux, in the profession 37 years, will "just stay at home and probably wish I were back with the children," and Miss Merrick, who has been teaching for 35 years, plans to "write more verses."

MAKE ENDEARING COTTON FROCK

MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9763

Wear white this summer, and be fashionable. Pattern 9763 gives the latest slant. Why not make it in the white cotton with a brilliant sash or "corset" belt? See how astoundingly chic and unusual the neckline is, for all its simplicity. And notice that the side closing calls for jaunty buttons on the bodice and the skirt (which opens flat to simplify ironing). Such a cool, action-loving dress, ready for a tennis match, a regatta or a summer luncheon party! Make it of firm broadcloth, a slub cotton or linen. You can sew it up in no time!

Germany, become patriots of the highest degree. Education is practically through the military camp, and the young citizen of the new Germany has hardness of body, skill of hand, the will to perpetuate the Reich, and general self-sufficiency.

In Italy, the Battle receives military training from pre-adolescent years on and are conditioned for the Fascist state in mind and body, exactly as the youth of Russia and Germany are conditioned for their respective economies.

When one sees the rhythmic march of great masses of young citizens in these countries, hears them sing the stirring songs of revolution in Russia, of the Horat Wessel song in Germany, one becomes aware of an international significance in the several citizenship training schemes here outlined. And one turns anxiously to his home land and asks perhaps anxiously: What are we doing to make democratic citizens for the America of coming years?

The answer is of course, the public high school, that is our school of citizenship. It is largely or wholly without military characteristics and the emotional mind set is relatively neglected. We seek to build tolerance and open-mindedness in sharp contrast with the intolerance and the fixed Chauvinism or Junkerism of Russia, Germany and Italy. There are, however, questions which deserve our careful reconsideration at this commencement season.

"Our Democratic process, we believe, must be preserved. Are we conditioning the minds of our youth for the defense of our hard-won liberties? Do we give correct and sufficient emphasis to the rights of minorities? Do we, in the school of citizenship, give the true emotional values to the democratic virtues so that our young citizens will be ready and eager to defend and perpetuate them?"

"Let us look briefly at a few of these virtues which are indispensable to the stability of our democratic institutions. "I have mentioned the relation of majority rule to minority rights. It is a fundamental concept that a minority party must be free to endeavor to become the majority by persuasion, instruction and appeal. Herein lies the essence of democracy which by sharp contrast makes the Russian constitution such a hollow mockery.

"Self-control is the outstanding virtue in any scheme of freedom. No one can be free or deserve the blessings of freedom, who has not learned self-control. All political and social crime is the expression of an uncontrolled will. Good citizenship is impossible without it. The great mass of the citizens of America have not needed much self-control in the past and this has qualified them for self-government and general social self-direction. We must see to it that our boys and girls come out of the high schools imbued with the idea that they are sovereign citizens who will exercise control over the political, social and moral destiny of a hundred million fellow citizens. In exercising this control they must be cooperative, generous, devoted to the general welfare, law-abiding, and self-supporting.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Warrant Counsel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get the bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, rest-making, making bile flow freely. Ask your Dr. or get a box of Little Liver Pills by name. Don't stubbornly refuse anything else.

the body and sucks its very life-blood. This is peculiarly dangerous in a democracy because it wastes the strength and leaves democracy prostrate. W. Flinders Petrie, the renowned archeologist, after studying the rise and fall of the civilizations of Egypt, Babylon, Greece and Rome made this ominous declaration: "Despotism bore down on the people until they turned on the autocrat and destroyed him and set up a democracy. Then they hedged their democracy about with various safe-guards but finally in every case democracy consumed itself through the waste of public money until financial collapse and social disintegration ensued. Then, to bring order out of chaos men submitted once more to autocratic rule." The cycle seems to be despotism, revolt, democracy, parasitism and waste, and again dictatorship.

"Self-discipline should therefore be the ideal of our high schools. We should aim to send out from these schools citizens who have learned self-control rather than self-indulgence. We have heard much in recent years about maintaining a high standard of living. We began with a "full-dinner pail" then followed a "chicken-in-the-pot," a "two-car garage," "prosperity—just a corner," "keep-up-the-standard-of-living," and finally we have encouraged our depression as a "necessary" thing. These slogans are a form of self-indulgence rather than self-discipline. We wasted billions of dollars on the war, killed millions of men, destroyed millions of dollars of real wealth. We have restored little or none of this gigantic loss except by borrowing. Our parasitic officialdom has not had the courage to exact payment of the debts and losses incurred because of the war but has instead lulled the populace to an insecure sleep by the slogans above referred to of which the most deadly is probably the cry for a "high standard of living" resting on borrowed capital. How soon will the cycle swing around "financial collapse and social disintegration" in the words of Sir W. Flinders Petrie?

"We might well paraphrase the words of Lincoln at Gettysburg in viewing the work of our public high schools: "Generous citizens, living and dead, have consecrated our democracy beyond our power to add or detract. The world will little heed what we say here tonight but will always respect what those who died who established free schools in America. It is for you graduates to dedicate yourselves to the task of preserving the freedom which these schools imply. It is your duty and privilege to give increased devotion to the great cause of freedom to which so many have given the last full measure of devotion. "It is for you that," in the words of Lincoln, "this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Special Music

Special music for the program was given by the choral and glee clubs and the high school orchestra, under the direction of Leonard Stine. The three numbers by the orchestra and the four choral numbers were exceptional, particularly the delicate shadings and humming in the vocal work. The added tympani and sousaphone to the instrumentation gave a particularly pleasing balance.

The class of graduates was presented by Principal Dumm to President Schmid who awarded the diplomas.

Salutatory

Miss Mary Elizabeth Clough gave the salutatory which was as follows:

I welcome you here tonight as friends, for whether you are a parent or a faculty member, guardian or relative, you have been loyal friends to us during our four years of high school.

In the beginning it was your vision that started us in school; for you know that education would be our guarantee of a more abundant life. It was your realization of what this might mean that kept us pushing toward our goal. In many cases you have done these things through actual sacrifices. I know that you want no sentimental deliberation on these sacrifices, but we are aware of them and deeply grateful.

You have spent more than money on us, you have spent precious hours of worry and uneasiness. And so, tonight, as we welcome you here, we are glad to see a light in your faces that shows that you are happy and satisfied. In many ways, this night is the celebration of your achievement. It may be our graduation, but how appropriately the congratulations are yours.

To you to whom we owe everything, we have nothing to give, nothing except the promise that we will try to live according to the standards that you have set, and try to fulfill the dreams that you have had for us. If, in time, we are slow or impatient, you must forgive because we are young. Our message to you is like the one of Marion Boyd:

Mocking the water with their wings,
The blue kingfishers scream,
Where willows bend, like silver flames,
Along the curving stream,
I cannot be as calm as you,
Seeing the sky so deeply blue.

On arching sprays of goldenrod,
The nervous warblers sing,
Drunk with the lavish sunlight
The yellow daisies din.
How can you keep from dancing now?
Gold butterflies have taught you how?

Today the world is blue and gold,
A chain of rich surprise,
You glimpse the hidden glory
Of the pain that underlies.
I am not colors gladly strong,
Forgive me that I am so young.

We are so young, but we have marvelous memories now, memories of our high school days that we will always cherish. School friends that have meant so much, pathetic little memories of our defeats, and grand proud ones of our triumphs, these things are unforgettable. Any student may forget the meaning of the principal parts of French verbs, but he will never lose the value of the little things that he has learned in participating in clubs and activities. There he is trained in personal characteristics that will never leave him.

Routine classwork and scholastic attainments are easy to forget, but the traits of character that are learned extra-curricularly will become a part of the student and a part of his life outside of school. I have realized the truth of this statement from my personal connection with the school newspaper. Working on the paper was such an enlightening experience that as a proud Alumnus I am going to advise every Freshman to go out for the school paper.

Of course, the actual practice in journalism that he will get will be rather haphazard, but at least he will learn the fundamentals. However, it is not that which is the most important function of the school newspaper. Rather the things that a student learns unconsciously will remain with him after he leaves school. Work on the paper will give him a valuable sense of initiative. On the paper, initiative sometimes means the difference between editor and reporter, so in the business world, it may mean the difference between success and failure. In doing a newspaper assignment, an interview, a call for fact and diplomacy, a student soon develops these characteristics. In later life, these same two qualities may help him live more harmoniously with other people.

Some have said that a reporter must have a nose for news and a pen for a pencil, but there is more to it than that. He must be resourceful and dependable. As necessary as these characteristics are in school work, their importance cannot be over estimated in any position that a student might hold after graduation. On the staff of the paper, resourcefulness and dependability are demanded of a member, and in the business office, they are as necessary as technical knowledge.

I would tell all this to the Freshman, and I would also say that at Kingston High School the newspaper is an institution to be proud of. It is only six years old, but in that time, it has doubled in size and practically doubled in value. It stands as a powerful proof of the value of the school newspaper, both to the school and to the individual student.

I hope that my young Freshmen will take my advice and go out for the paper, and many other extra-curricular activities with zest and enthusiasm. We, as a class, have had a great deal of enthusiasm for our school and our activities there, and tonight this sensation has reached its peak. We offer you these few hours to share with us our last and loveliest experience in Kingston High School.

Valedictory

The valedictory was given by Miss Virginia Boggs.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow classmates:

If these graduation exercises were being held 50 years ago, we 300 odd members of the Kingston High School class of 1938 would be facing an entirely different America, an entirely different world, from the one that faces us today. Well justified would have been the common phrases that the world was awaiting us with open arms, and that opportunity was smiling upon those who had the ambition and the initiative to achieve their material goal. The America that we would have been facing at that time would have been still somewhat of a pioneering land, a land of rugged individualism, where, if one were disappointed with life in the East, one could go west to fresher pastures. Little by little, as the West was becoming populated with the increasing number of immigrants, it grew more and more difficult for any one individual to find there the opportunities for which he was searching. Moreover, the growth of the industrial system, the increasing regimentation, and the ascendancy of machine labor over man labor were gradually overthrowing the old order based on individualism, and replacing it by large-scale and highly mechanized production. The standardization of goods was becoming related in the standardization of the mind. The increasing literacy, and the development of newspapers, magazines, movies and the radio were tending to make every one think alike.

At the very climax of this social tension came the World War. With the natural emotional impulses that it brought, youth believed it had found a cause to fight for, and kept blindly into the mad whirl with the battle-cry "make the world safe for democracy." Then followed disillusionment, resulting in post-war materialism, boom time and the jazz age, when youth, having lost its goal, tried to substitute amusement for happiness.

It can be held for the depression that, notwithstanding the many tragedies to which it gave birth, it opened our eyes to the social problems which we had, in our past, ignored. We 1938 graduates, I believe, are a far more sober and thoughtful outlook on life than did the class of 1934. We realize our problems, and the question now is how they may be solved.

There are many people who believe that by changing our political and economic set-up, all the evils of modern society may be cured. Unfortunately, only the blindest optimism can convince us that this is true. Although there is undoubtedly much that can be done by the government to improve the situation, the harm lies in ourselves rather than in the system. After all, society is composed of individuals, and can only be reformed by reforming the individuals.

My belief, and that of most of my classmates, I think, is that no other field can be so influential as the public school system toward rebuilding American society on a sane basis. Remarkable strides have been made in this field during the last ten years, as we can witness in our own city, but the road ahead is longer and steeper than the road behind.

Employers still complain of the lack of training among their employees, particularly in the field of industry. Although we have diverse points of view as to what in our high schools, the question is now arising as to whether the training that such courses offer is adequate. Lul Helman, an American industrialist, says, in "The Nation's Business" that an efficient industrial worker "can only be created by years of active shop work during the formative years of youth." He adds that a high school education does not fit a boy for such a position. He would suggest instead schools connected with each industry, where boys would be given free instruction and take part in their trade with the understanding that, their course of instruction completed, they would be employed in the enterprise. What is the solution to this problem? Is it not possible that the public schools have assumed a duty that belongs rather to the industries or the trade unions? Would it not be wiser to adopt a modernized form of the old apprenticeship system? Here lies ample subject for reflection.

Modern education, in its endeavor to be practical, has often forgotten the true purpose of education, which is the training of the intellect. Subjects of a purely cultural value have been considered "old hat," because, as the common saying goes, "you can't eat and drink culture." Has this modern age forgotten that wisdom springs from the mind, and that, as we exercise our muscles to become physically fit, so must we exercise our mind to enable it to meet our daily problems?

President Hutchins of Chicago University, in a recent article in the New York Times, attacks the common belief that education is of no use if it does not fill a utilitarian purpose. He says: "There is no connection between the ability to get a job and the desirability of going to college, unless we are talking about barbers' colleges. Would an educated man be better off if he were uneducated? Or, if the work he finds does not demand the education he has, should he be sorry that he has it? All the Danes, are engaged in what seems to us very poor farming. Denmark has the best educated population in the world. Why also note in passing that democracy functions better in Denmark than it does in most places."

Not only must we improve our means of preparation for life, but we must also reconsider American ideals, as interpreted by such men as Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. If we go back to the fundamental ideals expressed in our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution, we shall realize that true Americanism does not lie in spectacular fortune-making, and that the ideal American type is not the once highly praised "rugged man" but rather the industrious workman who is given the opportunity to enjoy life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness without injuring his fellow men.

The post-war insanity and the tragedies of the depression have opened our eyes to the dangers of uncontrolled so-called "rugged individualism," which is not individualism in its true sense, but rather a jungle doctrine that the strong are always right. The word liberty, which is the foundation of American institutions, has often been misused to justify abuses. If we resolve to think of liberty not as the right of every one to do as he pleases, but rather, in the words of Thomas Paine, as "the absence of arbitrary restraint," we shall arrive closer to the American ideal. We are therefore intent upon slowly achieving the goal envisaged by those great patriots who, at the risk of personal dangers, signed the Declaration of Independence.

It is a peculiar quality of youth that it desires a cause to fight for. If this urge is misguided, the result is often some form of radicalism, now typified by the totalitarian states of Europe. Let our goal be more sane, more rational, and more in keeping with the true American traditions.

The goal that we have set for ourselves is difficult to achieve, but with the traditional optimism of youth, we are confident of success. However, if we succeed, we shall not claim the glory of this accomplishment so much for ourselves as for those who have molded our young lives. You, our parents, our teachers, and the citizens of Kingston who have fostered our school activities and helped to prepare us for the task of disentangling a very confused world, you are the ones who have deserved the most, and that we shall never forget.

Notes of School

At High Falls

High Falls, June 29—School closed for the year with the annual commencement program Friday night, June 24, in the fire hall.

William Briggs, Lois Coddington, Carolyn Haselmayer, Blanch Henkin, Matilda Sampson, Marie Smith, and Robert Van Kleek finished their regents this June: Harold McCall and Carol Johnson in January and Donald Briggs, who is ill in Kingston Hospital will finish during the summer.

Mrs. Roy E. Ransom, president of the Mother's Club, presented each of the class with a class pin from the club.

Robert Van Kleek won the prize for earning the highest regents average.

Twelve pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the year. They were: Richard Girard, Kenneth Coddington, Walter Smith, Anita Abrahamson, Frances Steen, Thelma Williams, Edna Countryman, Florence Ransom, Matilda Sampson, William Sampson, Raymond Schoonmaker and Clayton Sutton. Leola Hendricks won honorable mention as she missed no days and was tardy but once.

The honor students for the fourth report period were: Jeanne Marie Horeau, Jean Parry, Sara Sampson, Eugene Terwilliger, Donald Van Demark, Sirel May, Fatsy Davenport, Gloria Protoss, Frances Steen, Edward Sampson, Winifred Hart, Bernice Winchell, George Hoffman, Mary Countryman, Dorothy Gray, Edna Countryman, Jane Briggs, Edna Countryman, Dorothy Fannenbaum, Dorothy Jacob, Florence Ransom, Virginia Coar, Blanch Henkin, Carolyn Haselmayer, Donald Briggs and Robert Van Kleek.

The Mother's Club gave the teachers and pupils a picnic on the school grounds Friday, June 17.

Seeks New Record

Southampton, Eng., June 29 (AP)—Captain George Eyston, British auto racer, sailed today for the United States where he will make another attempt to break his own world's speed record of 312.2 m.p.m. on the Bonneville flats in Utah.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROSEBUD COONS

HOLLYWOOD—About the most delectable morsel of actress to expose herself to a Hollywood camera in a month is Miss Danielle Darrieux, heretofore famed for her delicate dramatic performance in the French film "Mayerling" and for her shapely figure as glorified by Hollywood still cameras.

She makes an impressive American debut in "The Rage of Paris," a witty light comedy directed with a "touch" by Henry Koster and enacted with enthusiasm by the star, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mischa Auer, Louis Hayward and Helen Broderick. Miss Darrieux portrays a French girl stranded in New York, cut to get herself a rich husband or the advice of Miss Broderick after efforts to land a waiter have failed. Ane as a head-waiter is prime investor in the scheme. Hayward, the intended victim, young Fairbanks the friend who tries to save Hayward, with consequences for himself no less delightful in their screen narration for their inevitability.

Fairbanks Again

The new star for she is that—exhibits gaminish charm, seductive innocence, and spick-tempor in this comedy assignment along with fresh and youthful beauty.

Old Gag Refreshed

"The Cowboy from Brooklyn" depends on a hoary gag, but Director Lloyd Bacon and a good hard-working cast make it look new and the enthusiasm of the preview audience should mean something. "Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane, Ann Sheridan and Dick Foran are principals, with Powell the growing "cowboy" from Flatbush who can't look at a horse, cow, or chicken without turning green.

Sempervino, Sorenson Stars Friday; Mohawks Here Thursday

Upstaters Matched With New Yorkers From Jebby Stable

Seven Bouts

Perfetti, Diamond Belt Champ From Amsterdam, Faced With Harry Gims of Metropolis—Caprotti vs. Litz

Vince Sempervino, one of the finest ringmen ever to step around in the Municipal auditorium boxing arena, should have a job on his hands Friday night when he meets Herbie Solomon, Ben Jebby's New York welterweight in the five round semi-final to the match between Carl Sorenson, intercollegiate star, and Howie Means, New York lightweight flash.

Sempervino, coming here from the Hawaiian Islands, where he won the U. S. Army championship in the welter division last year, showed more skill than any of the adroit district A. A. U. battlers in bowling over the hard boys, but he's not invincible as proven by Richard Cremar of the George Gairford stable.

Several weeks ago, the old soldier stabbed away at Cremar with his educated left, and had the rugged little Golden Glover head for the skids when something happened. Sempervino, careless, let an opening. Boom! Cremar crashed a hard right on Vince's chin and walked away the winner. Previous to this Sempervino had defeated the New Yorker twice.

Herbie Solomon, if reputations mean anything, will be harder for the upstate welter than Cremar. He's harder, say his handlers, and is just as clever as the Gairford battler. Ben Jebby, ex-middweight champ of the world, is Solomon's coach and will be with him and the rest of the New Yorkers, Friday night.

Carl Sorenson, always a favorite here, is right down to the lightweight poundage. "I've been training hard for this scrap," said the Syracuse bomber, "because I want to put up a real fight in Kingston for my friends. Remember, the last time I was not myself and this battle with Means is sort of a redemption scrap."

Prior to enrolling at Syracuse University a couple of years ago, Sorenson was one of the classicists and most popular fighters in the Adirondack A. A. U. but while he's at school he can't do any outdoor boxing. Thus Kingston fans must wait until vacation time to see him.

Means is the man to give the Syracuse boy a real test, and Friday's duel between him and Sorenson should be one well worth seeing, say the sponsors of the Kingston A. C.

Ragins on Card

The two other five rounders on the bill will see Charlie Ragins, Saugerties Bomber, tangle with Vince Angelo, rough and ready, little 132 pounder from New York, and Dom Perfetti, Amsterdam's Diamond Belt bantamweight, slugging it with Harry Gims, metropolitan ace.

Jes Caprotti, Kingston's hard hitting lightweight, who won a comeback last week, is down with Carlo Litz, Albany slugger for three rounds. The other three will be Monk Armstrong, Kingston, vs. Billy Pelez, Albany welter, and Emerson DuBois, of Zena, taking his ring debut against Phil Nemereth, of Albany.

Starting time of the first bout is 9 o'clock.

Hedricks to Play Kyanize Tonight At Athletic Field

Rain having interfered with the Cosh-Grundenwald ball game last night, the City League schedule will get under way for the week tonight with the tilt between the Kyanize and Hedricks.

Swim Classes to Start on Thursday

Classes in the learn to swim campaign will start tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A., the first being scheduled for 9 o'clock in the morning.

"We want all the boys registered to arrive on time," said instructor Chuck Henke, "preferably 10 minutes before their swim begins, for preliminary instructions."

Classes last a half hour and will be conducted throughout the day.

Not Chance for Dismissal.

Albany, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Marriage, the state education department says, "is not in itself" cause for dismissal of a teacher from New York's public schools. In a 19-page pamphlet, the department said the idea that marriage "unfits a teacher for public school service is unfair discrimination and opposed to existing public policy." "Hence," the department said, "a bylaw of a city board of education providing that when a woman teacher marries her place becomes vacant cannot be enforced."

VanderMeer Wins 9th in Row As Reds Whip Pittsburgh 5-2

(By The Associated Press)

It probably would be considered treason to mention such a thing in the Rhinelead, but there is a strong suspicion in National League circles that the Cincinnati Reds might not look quite so good if the report had not coincided with the slumps of the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs.

There's no detracting from the feats of Johnny Vander Meer, who won his ninth straight yesterday when the Reds whipped Pittsburgh, 5-2, and who pitched one of Cincinnati's most persistent flurries right out of Forbes Field at the same time. The Reds had lost 21 straight in the Pittsburgh park and yesterday's was their first victory there since August, 1932.

In addition, such young fellows as Frank McCormick and Ival Goodman have done a lot toward changing the Reds into a pennant contender.

On the other side of the argument are these facts: Cincinnati's best performance has come since June 4. The Reds, after then, have won 14 of their last 29 games and have climbed to a spot only 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading Giants.

New York's best sport was right at the start of the season, 18 victories in the first 21 starts. The Cubs, from May 18 to June 7, won 15 and lost 4. If either could hold the pace set during those streaks, Cincinnati hardly would be in the running. But while the Reds were on the upgrade, the Giants have been playing about .500 ball while the Cubs have lost 12 out of their last 18.

Both of these slumps can be partly explained by injuries. The Cubs didn't get the aid they hoped for from Dizzy Dean and in addition had to get along for some time without "Sparkplug" Gabby Hartnett. The pre-season loss of Burgess Whitehead and the more recent injury to Joe Moore caused the Giants plenty of trouble which the acquisition of Alex Kampouris and Bob Seeds may have settled.

The Cubs took a 9-3 licking from the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and dropped a game and a half behind the Reds.

Lean Lonnie Warneke limited Chicago to seven blows while the Gas Housters fell on Tex Carleton for seven runs in the third, when Pepper Martin blasted a homer with two aboard.

In the American League, Cleveland's Indians increased their lead to 4 1/2 games over the idle New York Yankees as they eked out a 5-4 decision over Detroit. A five run blast, including homers by Hal Trosky and Ken Keltner, won the game. In the second, Johnny Allen to save the lead in the eighth.

An exciting ninth inning in which Marvin Owen stole home just after Rip Radcliff had belted a homer with two aboard enabled the Chicago White Sox to beat the St. Louis Browns in the day's other game. The Sox gained a four-run lead in the ninth but the Browns came back with three, losing out when pinch-runner Bill Cox was thrown out at the plate.

The eastern clubs in both leagues all were rained out.

Cleveland and Brooklyn Sore

New York, June 29 (AP)—The loudest laments in the wake of the naming of the squads for the all-star game at Cincinnati July 5 come from Cleveland and, of all places, Brooklyn.

Cleveland fans are beefing because their sterling first baseman, Hal Trosky, was left off the American League roster, and the Brooklyn addicts are howling because Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the veteran knuckle-baller, was given the go-by when the National League chose its best.

Trosky, while no bargain as a fielder, has been leveling the fences all season, and at the moment is second only to his teammate, Earl Averill, among American League sluggers. He is banging the ball far ahead of the three first basemen who were picked by the American Leaguers—Jimmy Foxx, Hank Greenberg and Lou Gehrig.

Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn manager, is as sore as the Flatbush fans about the "sighting" of Fitzsimmons by his former bosom pal, Bill Terry, who made the final selection of the National League team he will handle in the big one-day engagement.

Lawrin, Dauber at Hollywood Park Escapes Injury

Inglewood, Calif., June 29 (AP).

Clashing for the first time since their dramatic one-two finish in the Kentucky derby, Lawrin and Dauber hit the trail again today in the first $50,000 race of Hollywood Park's inaugural meeting.

Two other candidates, Cleveland Putnam's Wing and Wing, and Mrs. Edna Voynow's Rommy, were in the little gathering named for the race, strayed the American three-year-old championship purse at a mile and one-quarter.

Few of the expected 50,000 fans, and no experts at all, were willing to give either Rommy or Wing and Wing a tumble in the same sentence, much less at a betting window, with such sires as Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin and Dauber of the ever formidable Foxcatcher Farm.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

By The Associated Press.

San Francisco—Bronko Nagurski, 235, Minnesota, defeated Sandor Szabo 216 Hungary, two of three falls.

Modesto, Calif.—Ivan Rasputin, 235, Russia, defeated Hank McHenry 226 St. Louis, two straight falls.

New York—Irving Eldridge, 134, New York, outpointed John Bonito, 134 1/2, New York (5).

Rain or not, track officials prepared for a crowd of 50,000 when the horses go postwards (about 5 p. m. E. D. T.)

Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, with Charley Kutsinger up, was the favorite for the mile and an eighth route. The four-year-old son of Man o' War, with a reputation for liking mud, was a sure starter from the outside position.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, June 28—The Rev. Frederick G. Baker, pastor of the M. L. Church is attending summer school at Carmel this week.

Friday evening, July 8, will be "Community Night" at the Stone Ridge Grange hall. The Service and Hospitality Committee of which Mrs. Stanley Roosa is chairman, will sponsor an "all star" entertainment featuring local talent followed by dancing with music by the popular Chet Davis and his famous singing orchestra. In addition to the entertainment, music and dance, acts of magic will be performed.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank DuBoise, of Catskill, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Bishop, Sunday.

The Builders' Guild will hold their regular monthly meeting Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Roy E. Ransom. All members are urged to be present as plans will be made for their annual chicken salad supper in July.

Mrs. Helen Halvorsen, of Brooklyn, is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Nilssen and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Roosa and family motored to Middletown Sunday where they were guests of Mr. Roosa's brother, Elmer Roosa and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tobias, of Washington, D. C., have rented the residence on the Atwood road owned by Dr. William Bush, of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hendricks have returned to their home in this place for the summer. Mr. Hendricks is a member of the faculty at Roslyn, L. I.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church will meet July 6 instead of June 29 as previously announced. The meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George Weeks at 2 p. m.

Miss Evelyn Roosa has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Roosa for her summer vacation. Miss Roosa is a teacher at Coeymans.

Miss Vivian Bar, Donald Oakley and Frederick Baker are graduating this week from Kingston High School.

Mrs. Ward Christiana has returned home after visiting her mother-in-law, Mrs. Christiana, at The Vly.

Demarest Adams, his mother and niece, enjoyed the week-end at their summer home in this place.

The M. E. Church was beautifully decorated on Sunday morning for the Children's Day program. The primary and junior classes gave a most interesting program. Due to the heavy rain-fall the audience was not as large as usual.

Miss Krom and daughter, Elmer and Claude, John Van Wageningen and family, E. J. Hunt, Mrs. Nettie Lockwood, Mrs. Clara Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christiana, Mrs. Libby Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Bishop, Mrs. George Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Ransom and daughters, Dorothy and Florence, were among those who motored to the Trinity M. E. Church at Poughkeepsie Saturday to attend the wedding of Dr. and Mrs. John Becker of Poughkeepsie to Lansing Hunt of this place. The ceremony was followed by a reception in the Sunday school parlors. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt have a host of friends in this community. On returning from their honeymoon they will reside at Edgewater Camp.

Mrs. Ralph Sahler enjoyed the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Zella Lasher, at Bearsville.

Lien Is Settled Outside Court

An action for foreclosure of mechanic's lien brought by Alton Smith against Edward A. Seymour, scheduled for trial Tuesday afternoon in county court, was announced settled when the case was called at 2 o'clock. Dorre E. Monroe for plaintiff and William A. Kaercher for defendant.

That being the last civil case on the day calendar Judge Traver excused the jurors for the term after expressing his appreciation for their service. A large number of criminal cases were disposed of and several civil matters were either settled or otherwise disposed of at the term, he told the jury, and the presence of the jurors ready to proceed with trials had been instrumental in effecting settlement.

Court then recessed until Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock without a jury.

THEY SING A SONG OF OTHER DAYS

These half dozen G. A. R. veterans punctuated their trip to the 75th anniversary observance of the Battle of Gettysburg with this bit of lusty singing of oldtime songs as they gathered in Chicago on the way to Pennsylvania. Left to right: Joshua Henry, 95, Sabetha, Kas.; Homer S. Woodworth, 95, Chicago; Mr. Barothy, 91, Omaha, Neb.; Jerry Witthelm, 94, Lincoln, Neb.; J. R. Huddleston, 95, La Harpe, Ill.; Charles E. Scarlett, Atchison, Mo.

LEADERS OF BLUE AND GRAY REUNION

Leading the march of Civil War veterans to the battlefield of Gettysburg, Pa., for the 75th anniversary observance of the famous battle, Dr. Overton H. Mennel, (left) 89-year-old commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, and James R. Paul, 105-year-old veteran of the Confederate Army, look over a map of the area with Capt. W. J. Bald (right) of the regular army.

Peter Franz Looking For Owner of Pigeon

Peter Franz, operator of the Rosendale Poultry Farm, Inc., reports that he has a blue carrier pigeon that flew into his yard, exhausted, Monday about 4 p. m., and is holding it for the owner.

Mr. Franz told a reporter that the bird, wet from the heavy rain, and completely exhausted, flew against the house and fell in his yard. The bird's left wing was injured.

"I fed the pigeon and am taking care of it until the owner claims the bird," he said. He gave the markings on leg tags as follows: Left leg 110-1F-37 L A W; right leg F17.

The telephone number of Mr. Franz is Rosendale 44.

NEW HURLEY

New Hurley, June 29—William Engerson of Brooklyn was in this place Saturday.

Mrs. Mortimer has been spending a few days with relatives in New York and attended the graduation of her grandson.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Denniston and children and Mrs. J. H. Denniston were dinner guests Sunday at the home of Mrs. Denniston's mother, Mrs. Josiah LeFevre, at New Paltz.
